Delicate Balance Death by Telephone 13—See How They Run Farms—Real Gold Mines

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

The French are agitated because "the European balance of power has been upset." Upset is putting it mildly. Against a little more than one hundred million inhabitants of England, Italy and France, are now arrayed two hundred millions of Germans and Russians, to say nothing of the Turks and the possibility of other hundreds of millions farther East.

The European balance is a delicate thing, to be established only by a common sense determination to work and build instead of fighting and tearing down.

An Italian paper alleges that Germany and Russia already have an agreement as to foreign policy, with the new Turkish government at Angora. That was inevitable. It will interest Rumania, nestling close to Bolshevism, and other Balkan states. Also the Big Allies. Countries like Germany, Russia and Turkey, with not much to lose except their debts, may try dangerous things.

Does mind control matter? Yes, also life and death. You need read no book on faith healing to prove it.

In Berlin, Mr. Kobler disliked a merchant ill of consumption. Daily Mr. Kobler called up the unfortunate man to ask, "Have you still got your lung?" or to suggest "You had better hang yourself, you will fail anyway, before you die." The victim died prematurely.

Millions of fathers and mothers, constantly putting into the minds of children thoughts of fear, disease, etc., thus diminish their mental powers of resistance.

It is possible to protect children without frightening them. This is written not by a Christian Scientist, but by one who believes in real science. You can use real science to combat disease without frightening the patient to death while using it.

That genius of the newspaper world, Mr. Frank A. Munsey, discovers, and announces with a Medusa frown, that thirteen Republican Senators are running for re-election, and every one is in favor of the soldiers' bonus.

Precisely, Mr. Munsey, that is why elections are held, why the majority is allowed to elect Republican Senators, up for re-election every little while, are compelled in spite of themselves, to ask "what do the people want?" and to add, "I'd better give it to them, and not be kicked out."

We revere gold, and speak of it as though it were the only real wealth. Yet all the gold mines produce in a year not more than a few hundred millions. Last year the farms of this nation alone produced in value twelve thousand, three hundred and sixty-six million dollars ($12,366,000,000). There is the country's real wealth, which, as Otto H. Kahn points out, keeps pace very evenly in its rising and falling with the country's manufactured wealth.

Protect farmers, workers, manufacturers and able business men. Keep out of foreign complications and there is nothing to worry this country.

The bonds of New York city sell above bonds of the United States. New York can borrow at a lower rate of interest than the government. At first sight you say "wonderful New York!" At second sight, "intelligent, rich investors." They put their money into bonds of New York because they are tax-free. "To him that hath shall 'be given'"—freedom from taxation. The man that works for a salary, the man making his profit through business and building up "the country" is well-taxed. Exempt bonds dodge all income tax. You can't expect to make Republican government a perfect success the first time you try it.

The battleship Maine that was junked the other day, was not, of course, the original Maine, sunk at Havana, but a ship named for the original Maine, launched in 1901. She was then the finest fighting ship afloat. Now she is as obsolete as the dodo or the great auk. So it is with battleships, so it will be with flying machines, which will have taken the place of battleships entirely inside of two or three years when the old fogies open their eyes, and the admirals are no longer able to spend forty million dollars for a quarter deck strut.

No matter how old it may be, as long as a flying machine can FLY it will be able to drop TNT. Great economy in fighting with a flying machine that will cost eventually less than five thousand dollars, and require only two men for a destructive crew.

SUSPECTS NARROW DOWN TO ONE MAN

Pittsfield, N. H., Youth Failed to Report for Work on Day of Killing

Manchester, N. H., April 22.—All suspects in the murder of Ralph W. Brewster, excepting a Pittsfield man, were eliminated from the investigation today after the police had questioned several young men who recently bought soft hats at Heins' Hat Shop.

The Pittsfield suspect is twenty-one years old. He has worked as a clerk in a Manchester store. He was subjected to another searching examination today by State Detective Kirlin of Massachusetts. He did not report for work Thursday, but appeared in Pittsfield Friday morning.

Four persons came forward today to tell of having seen a mysterious stranger in the vicinity of the Winchester B. & M. railway station shortly before or just after the time the body of Ralph W. Brewster, young station agent, was found dead of two bullet wounds Thursday night.

Another, Mrs. Nellie Murphy, repeated her story of the man she saw in the back yard of the residence of Dr. Rola B. Sargent, with whom Brewster lived.

The description given by all five persons tallied.

The man was described as thick set, short, powerful and wearing a soft hat and a long dark overcoat. One of the witnesses told of a scar on the man's upper lip.

But though the police of Winchester redoubled their exertions to find this stranger, the search for the owner of the soft sport hat found near the railroad station at Winchester on the morning following the murder and which bore the label of a Manchester hatter did not slacken.

Several young men who had purchased such hats from "Heim, the Hatter," at Manchester, N. H., were questioned today by Massachusetts and Manchester police officials in an effort to discover any connection between them and the hat found in Winchester.

Thomas Flaherty, a painter of Winchester, was the first witness to tell of having seen the "mysterious stranger" near the station Thursday evening. Flaherty was tanding in Winchester square when he saw the man hurrying toward him and away from the station.

Believing he recognized him, Flaherty called out, but the man merely raised the collar of his overcoat and hurried by without a word. That was near 10 o'clock.

SAW MAN IN STATION.

A few moments later Philip Le Duc, son of the proprietor of the Auto Lunch room in Railroad avenue off Winchester square, saw a man answering this description hastening along the street in the direction of the fields leading to Woburn.

FIRES SHOTS IN PURSUIT OF FUGITIVE

Frank Stone of Myrtle street, West End, was in Municipal Court today on charges which grew out of a midnight chase in the Boston Common during which the bench guests were aroused from sound slumbers by the firing of a volley of revolver shots.

Stone had been arrested, according to police, for making a sale of whiskey to Patrolman Bird. Bird was escorting the prisoner and liquor to a patrol box when Stone is alleged to have broken away. There followed cries to stop, followed by the popping of the patrolman's gun as he emptied it toward the clouds.

Stone was captured, having no chance in a race with a Bird, and the bench guests rolled over and went back to sleep.

SIGNS ORDER TO DEPORT PROBST

By the Associated Press

Washington, April 22.—The record of an immigration examining board at Ellis Island which ordered August Probst, a Swiss waiter deported from the United States as an alien who had surreptitiously entered the United States, was approved today by Assistant Secretary of Labor Henning, but the order for his removal from the United States was left unsigned, to allow Probst's attorney further time to present argument for delay.

The case was given prominence when Probst charged than an attempt was being made to bar him from the United States because a Pittsburgh heiress fell in love with him.

Secretary Henning said that the deportation order would probably be signed in a day or two unless further appeal was taken to the courts or facts brought forward to change the situation.

R. I. Legislators Pass Dry Law, Then Liquor Flows Freely in Capitol

Providence, April 22.—The wildest revel ever staged at the Rhode Island State House ended today when, following the passage of an act to enforce national prohibition in Rhode Island, members of the Senate and House and guests ended an all-night drinking bout and staggered out of the chambers into the sunshine.

It was the passing of the 1922 Legislature. It passed with a bang.

In continuous session from 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon until early today, general sessions in both houses as well as hearings in various committee rooms were continually interrupted while adjournments were taken for libations.

Parties were in continuous session in all committee rooms.

Improvised buffet bars were oversnored by deputy sheriffs. They mixed drinks and served.

What was known as the "main bar" was in the large hearing room

He found work next day and out of his first pay he paid Moorman the $6 then surrendered to the police. The jury took a standing vote on acquittal.

Pair Surrender When Roxbury Policeman Threatens to Shoot

Two alleged bootleggers were arrested at the point of a pistol by Patrolman Drown of the Roxbury Crossing Station today after a two-mile automobile chase through streets in that district.

The prisoners gave their names as Samuel Tolchinsky and George Dollman, both of Chelsea.

They were later arraigned before Judge Talmer in Roxbury Court, charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale. They were held in $500 each for trial April 27.

The men drove up to a store in the Grove Hall section. Their actions aroused the suspicions of a pedestrian, who notified the police.

Patrolman Drown, on duty in that vicinity, was reached by telephone and ordered to bring the men to the station for questioning. As he approached their car the pair hastily jumped aboard and whizzed away.

The officer promptly commandeered a passing machine and started in pursuit.

ABANDONED MACHINE.

With the fugitive machine racing along at about two hundred yards ahead, the two cars tore through a number of the busiest streets of the district. Patrolman Drown drew his pistol, but was unable to fire because of the danger of hitting other vehicles in the way.

When the curve rounded into a clear stretch of Kearsarge avenue the machine carrying Patrolman Brown began gradually creep up on the other one.

When the distance between the cars had narrowed to about one hundred yards the fugitives stopped their machine, leaped out and started to run.

Patrolman Brown jumped from his own car and ran after them, shouting a threat to shoot. The men thereupon stopped running and surrendered.

FIVE GALLONS OF MOONSHINE.

The police claim they found five gallons of alleged moonshine under the seat of the machine. A month ago two men resembling the prisoners, according to the police, visited a Grove Hall store and tried to force a storekeeper to buy moonshine from them.

At that time the pair claimed to enjoy police protection and warned the storeman that if he didn't buy their liquor they would see that he was "framed" on a raid.

Home Brew Mash Clogs Sewers in Lynn

If the home brewers of Lynn are to be permitted to proceed with their homebrewing, they must NOT let the mash run through drain pipes into the city sewers. Otherwise the "tremmors" are going to get them.

Chief of Police Thomas M. Burckes of the Lynn P. D. has received the following letter:

Dear Sir—It has been called to my attention that our Sewer Department is having trouble in certain sections of this city with the sewers because of the fact that many people are throwing into the sewes mash which has been used in making home-made liquors of various kinds. This is proving to be a serious menace to our Sewer Department and I should advise that you have the sergeant of the Liquor Squad get in touch with the Sewer Department officials and get the exact location of where this trouble occurs as it may be a means of locating some of the illegal liquor business that is going on in this city.

Respectfully yours,

HARLAND A. McPHETRES,
Mayor.

Mingled with other sewer refuse the mash, Sewer Department officials say, forms a block as solid as cement. It has to be broken with picks. The worst case so far happened in Morris and Blossom streets, in the western section of Lynn.

In the past ten days, Mayor McPhetres says, the home-brewers have cost Lynn $400 in work on clogged sewers.

MRS. ROLAND D. MAHONEY

Ex-City Hall Phone Girl Bride in Runaway Match

CITY HALL GIRL SECRET BRIDE 3 MONTHS

Miss Gertrude Smith, former private telephone operator for former Mayor Peters, and now an assistant in the city registrar's department, kept her wedding to Roland D. Mahoney, local business man, secret for three whole months.

Back in January the two slipped away to Portland, Me., and were married.

Returning to Boston, they continued in their work without letting their friends know anything about the culmination of their romance.

It was only through a slip of the tongue on the part of the bride that it got out even after three months.

They are living at No. 86 Glen road, Jamaica Plain.

IRISH RAIDERS BURN SHIP AT DUBLIN

By the Associated Press.

Dublin, April 22.—Fifty armed men raided the steamer Hathlihead, anchored here, today. The shot and wounded the watchman, sprinkled the decks and fittings with gasoline, set the vessel aflame and made off.

The crew, with the assistance of regular Irish Republican army troops, extinguished the flames before serious damage had been done.

General Strike May Tie Up Dublin

By International News Service.

Dublin, April 22.—The city is prepared for a complete shutdown of all industry on Monday as a result of the general strike called as a protest against the military tactics of the two factions of the army.

Even the city corporation has agreed to support the strikers. The Mayor in addressing the Council, declared:

"Why not get rid of these Irish armies as we did the British? We can do without them. Let those battles clear out and then the people of the city will have peace."

Although the general strike has been called for the whole country, it is not expected that any places except the Nationalist centres will be affected.

Leader O'Connor of the mutineers has sent a copy of their "peace terms" to the secretary of the Dail, demanding that the Dail be the only government. He also demands that the elections be postponed and asks an answer by Sunday.

Bishop Hits Rowdy De Valera Tactics"

Buffalo, April 22.—Bishop William Turner of the Catholic diocese of Buffalo sent a cablegram to Archbishop Byrne of Dublin expressing the hope that a solution of Ireland's troubles will be found in a "free and untrammeled electoral expression." The message said that "hopes lies in the direction of co-operation between labor and the church as represented by yourself."

"Irish Americans," the cablegram reads, "will stand almost to a man by any declaration which is arrived at in a free election such as we are accustomed to. Those of us who loved De Valera and supported him here will be disappointed and saddened, if, even at this late moment, too late perhaps, he does not dissociate himself from militarism and rather rowdy, interference with the vote."

Catholics Send Protest to London

By Universal Service.

Belfast, April 22.—The Catholic protection committee telegraphed to Winston Churchill and Austen Chamberlain as follows:

"Catholics are being gradually, but certainly, exterminated by murder, assault and starvation. Homes are being burned and the streets are being swept by snipers. The military is inactive and the special police are hostile to the government, being either culpable or inefficient.

"Your government saved the Armenians. In Belfast the Catholics are getting worse treatment than Armenians did."

Dail Eireann Has Postponed Sessions

Dublin, April 22.—The sessions of the Dail Eireann have been postponed until Wednesday, according to an official announcement. The Dail is expected to make a decision on whether to revise the registry before the Irish general elections.

BRIGHTON AUTOIST, FINED $200, SETTLES

Harold Howland, a Brighton plumber's helper, was fined $100 and sentenced to one year in the House of Correction when he appeared in Newton Court on a charge of driving under the influence of liquor. He appealed the case and Judge William Allen changed his decision and fined him $200 with no jail sentence. He paid. John Stevens and Leroy Delaney, Howland's companions, were fined $10 each on drunkenness charges.

GIRL STUDENTS AT NORTHFIELD MISSING

Northfield, April 22.—Two pretty students of the fashionable Northfield Seminary for Girls are missing, and their relatives and friends are almost in despair of finding them safe.

The girls are Miss Emma Safford, twenty-two years old, of Pawtucket, R. I., and Miss Bernice Hollingshead, seventeen, of Ohio.

Fellow-students last saw the girls Sunday afternoon. At the time they were talking to some mysterious person, who kept hidden behind the curtains of a limousine.

When the girls were first missed, it was thought they had gone driving, but when they failed to return that night search was made, but without uncovering any clew to their whereabouts.

Thoroughly alarmed Monday morning at the continued absence of the students, the school authorities notified the State police, and State Detective Joseph V. Daly was put on the case.

Two brothers of the Hollingshead girl, who were in Canada, came down here to do what they could to find their sister and her chum.

Every effort has been made to keep the whole affair secret, Detective Daly refusing to either affirm or deny that he was making an investigation, and Deputy Sheriff Fred Doane of Northfield, who is aiding the State officer, being equally mum.

The woods in the vicinity of the school have been thoroughly searched.

The girls lived in the Hillside dormitory, but did not room together, both of them had been heard to express dissatisfaction with their life at school.

Believes Safford Girl Has Gone Seeking Work

Pawtucket, April 22.—Emma Safford, missing Northfield student, made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sellew in Glenwood avenue. Sellew is head of the Sellew Machine Company of Pawtucket.

Mrs. Sellew engaged the girl as a companion two years ago. Becoming interested in her she proposed that she further her education and sent her to the Northfield Seminary for Girls. She entered there in last September.

Mrs. Sellew said today Miss Safford was home on a visit last month and expressed a desire to leave school and go to work. She is an orphan and came to Mrs. Sellew from the MiddleWest through mutual friends.

"I believe Emma decided to go to work and just left school," she said today. "She told me she would not come home to me when school closed this Summer but would seek a position. To my knowledge she was not interested in home. She had once declared she would like to return to the Middle West."

ARREST NEAR IN BREWSTER MURDER; OWNER OF HAT GRILLED BY POLICE

stranger and Flaherty, Walter Bedell, an employe of the railway, had stopped in to speak to Brewster and had seen the same man in the waiting room of the station.

The same general description fitted the man seen by Mrs. Nellie Murphy on Tuesday night and again on Thursday night in the vicinity of Dr. Sargent's home in Woburn. On aThursday night the man was seen near the Sargent's cellar door shortly before nine o'clock. Mrs. Sargent heard a door slam in the cellar a little afterward, but thought it only the wind.

Arthur Drummond, son of the proprietor of the Drummond Meat Market at Winchester, acquainted with almost every one in the little town, also saw the broad-shouldered, dark-coated stranger Thursday night. The man was hiding back of a large tree in Winchester square near the drive leading to the station.

The net around the young suspected owner of the hat found near the station, tightened today as police in Winchester and Pittsfiel, N. H., continued their investigation. It was admitted there, that an arrest might be made at any moment.

They would not say whether it would be made here in Pittsfield or at Manchester, N. H.

Massachusetts State Detective Fred Kirlin, who with Sergeant McCauley of the Winchester, Mass. police department questioned the young owner of the hat, were expected to leave for home today.

They refused, however, to make any comment on what they had learned from the suspect, or whether they intended making an arrest before starting back for the Bay State.

TOOK THURSDAY OFF.

It is known, however, that the hat bears the label of "Helm, the Hatter, Manchester, N. H.," and that it is 6¾ size. The dealer was able to tell the police officers to whom the hat had been sold.

This customer was a young man, well known in Manchester, though still in his early twenties. He was not at work Thursday, the day of the shooting, but reported for work on time Friday morning.

This suspect is little more than a boy in appearance and carriage. He proved a frank and willing witness, replying readily and fully to all questions put to him by the officers.

In fact he was so frank that he almost succeeded in disarming the officers, who admitted today they are at a loss for a motive for the crime on his part or that of any other suspect.

MUST PROVE OWNERSHIP.

Brewster did not own a hat of this type. It is thought by the police that the hat was accidentally dropped by the murderer in precipitate flight due to the possible approach of one one t. the station immediately after the shooting. The task which confronted the State and local police authorities today was to prove this hat to be the property fo the suspect.

The outstanding feature of the important discovery was that it showed someone from New Hampshire and possibly from Manchester had been in the vicinity of the railroad station at the time of the shooting. This was regarded as an encouraging step toward the solution of the mystery surrounding the murder of the young telegrapher and assistant station agent, who was a 32d degree Mason and prominent in the Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias and other fraternal organizations.

Here's a Description of Stranger in Brewster Case

The following description of a stranger seen in the vicinity of the Winchester railroad station within a few minutes of the time Ralph W. Brewster, station agent, was murdered, is given by a number of persons who saw the man. He is said by all of the witnesses to have been:

Slightly below the average height, with broad, powerful shoulders and the appearance of strength.

Walked rapidly and with a slight forward inclination of the body.

Was smooth shaven, and one of the witnesses thinks he had a scar on the upper lip.

Wore a soft hat of cloth or felt, and a long, dark overcoat.

Appeared to be in a desperate hurry after leaving the vicinity of the station

INTERVIEW GIRL.

Hurried search of the grass and shrubbery surrounding Winchester railroad station after the finding of Brewster's body just before midnight Thursday failed to reveal the hat, although pocket flash lights were used. It was overlooked by the searchers, but they found it at daybreak and it changed the entire complexion of the tragedy.

Immediately after interviewing the owner of the hat, State Officer Kirlin and Officers McCauley of Winchester and Hampstead of Manchester interviewed Miss Aroline Greene, a girl in her teens, who has been living with the Brewsters at their home here on Main street, Mrs. Brewster having left for Boston. Miss Greene is the daughter of former Chief of Police Harry Greene. She denied that she knew any one who wore a hat resembling that found near the scene of the murder.

The officers returned to Manchester last night and early today began checking up the movements of the suspect. The authorities are known to be now working on the theory that jealousy may have prompted the murder.

ELIMINATE FAMILY ROW.

Little attention is being paid by police to the theory that a family dispute lead to the tragedy.

There was a family friction over the division of the estate of the grandparents of Brewster's wife, it is because of this friction that the woman who had posed for years as Mrs. Brewster's sister, Bertha, suddenly confessed that she was her mother instead, in order to get the whole of the estate of her father, Louis H. Case, late of this town.

This domestic revelation shocked Mrs. Brewster and her husband and soon became a town scandal. As a result of it Mrs. Brewster's mother was forced to confess that her daughter Ruevena, now Mrs. Brewster, was born out of wedlock. She was further obliged, before settlement of the estate in her favor, to produce a certificate which stated that the father of her first daughter was "unknown."

Mrs. Brewster is in a condition bordering on collapse. During a two hours' conference with District Attorney Saltonstall, State Officer Silas Smith and Chief of Police William R. McIntosh of the Winchester police, she said her husband had not a single enemy to her knowledge.

Mrs. Brewster said that she and her husband owned their own home in Pittsfield. They owned the automobile which stood outside the station when Brewster was killed.

GAVE RIDE TO GIRLS.

Last Monday, the widow told the authorities, Brewster drove up to Pittsfield and took her back to Winchester with him, the couple spending the holiday with Dr. and Mrs. Sargent, who live on Highland street, Woburn. Dr. Sargent and Brewster had been friends since childhood. It was with the young dentist that the station agent made his home on taking the new position.

On Thursday morning, Mrs. Brewster said, her husband drove her as far as Lowell, where she took a train back to Pittsfield. At that time, she told the authorities, he was in good spirits, and said he hoped to see her again shortly.

He then returned to Woburn, and it was while driving through Billerica that Brewster gave a lift to two young women whom he met on the road, according to Dr. Sargent. The girls were strangers to Brewster, and on carrying them as far as they wished to go, he left them and continued to the Sargent home.

According to a report in Winchester, the family troubles of the Robinsons were featured about a year ago when Kenneth Robinson, step-brother of Mrs. Brewster, was mysteriously shot in one leg. It was not brought out who did the shooting. Brewster, the station agent, was in Pittsfield at that time, it was said.

It was said that he and young Robinson were at odds since the settlement of the will of Mrs. Robinson's father. It was at that time Mrs. Robinson disclosed the fact that Mrs. Brewster was her illegitimate daughter. The girl did not share in the estate as a result.

WILD DRINKING BOUT IN THE R. I. LEGISLATURE

on the House side of the Capitol. There a barrel of whiskey eggnog was kept filled by a deputy sheriff, bartender with assistants.

SIX CASES WHISKEY.

When adjournment came at 7 a. m. it had been sponged dry. Here is what had passed into and out of it:

Six cases of whiskey.
One hundred cases of milk.
Several crates of eggs.

"Keep a stick in it," was the general order. And the stick was there, so much so that in the gray hours of dawn the House was in rollicking song, while the Senators attempted to make humorous talks.

Hiccoughs and crude laughter greeted their thickly spoken jests.

In the executive office Governor San Souci received friends throughout the night.

In the office of the Sheriff at the main entrance to the House, Blcardi ruled was on tap for all who called. Outside were many and many were repeaters.

In another committee room a delegation of Providence soft-shockings interested in a newspaper bill for its employes received legislators with stock of the finest of whiskies and brandies.

The reception ran dry only at dawn with alobs from many pullers who would have to go to work in the imposing building, at least the spot of highest nudity.

HELPED INTO TAXIS.

Legislators number 109, 100 in the House, 29 in the Senate. In addition to the lawmakers were politicians from all over the State and scores of guests who came to "wet their whistle" and were not disappointed. Many of them were helped out to taxicabs and sent to hotels.

Veteran reporters declared the revel the most disgraceful in twenty years.

It has been an annual custom to quietly celebrate the passing of a lawmaking body, but never was it carried to the extreme of this year's "party."

That it came on the heels of the beading of the State prohibition enforcement law is expected to cause such an upheaval it will rock the State, already shocked with gambling exposes.

Many of the lawmakers were plain drunk. In the same condition were many men who have been active leaders in the dry cause.

"Ha, ha, Joe, you're all lit up. Man, you're drunk as a fool," was a common remark sent echoing through capitol halls and accompanied with a jovial slap on the back. "You're some D'F old prohibitionist, you are, Joe. Ha, ha."

CLINKING GLASSES.

Clinking glasses, segregated quartettes with thick impediments in voices lifted to song, the occasional crash of a falling legislator into his seat were frequent interruptions to travesty on legislation throughout the long last session.

Then at 7 a. m. came the word that "the works were dry," the awakening of snoring sleepers and a general exodus to taxicabs and automobiles of heavy-eyed, cotton-mouthed men who had been elected to serve with dignity fitting the high offices they occupied. Out they staggered in twos, threes and fours, the gentlemen who had put wide history for Rhode Island and enacted a law to enforce prohibition among the people.

Among the measures killed are the 48-hour work week bill; a number of acts to prohibit night work for woman and children; several resolutions to abolish the property qualification for voters and an act to establish a widowed mother's pension system.

RUSSO-MONGOLIAN TREATY REPORTED

The Urga government, says the message, has concluded a treaty with the Russian Soviet government under which the latter pledges support to Mongolia in the event of a Chinese invasion.

CITY COUNSEL HITS CHARGES BY McCAFFREY

Attorney Sullivan Says Officer Is Only Seeking "Self Glorification" in Food Case

E. Mark Sullivan, corporation counsel for the city of Boston, has written to Police Commissioner Wilson calling his attention to the charges which are made against the City Health Department by Patrolman George H. McCaffrey through the Boston American.

Attorney Sullivan declares he is moved to write the commissioner by the fact that some of the patrolman's remarks "attacked the integrity of the law department," and asserts that that department has promptly granted "any reasonable request" made on it by the Health Department since he—Sullivan—took charge.

LITTLE IMPRESSED.

His letter follows:

"Personally I have been but little impressed with this officer's recent outburst of loquaciousness and would not now trouble with his reported interview were it not that this 'officer has attacked the integrity of the Law Department, for the conduct of which I alone am responsible and have been since March 8 of this year.

"I am certain that the Health Department of this city, either by Patrolman McCaffrey or any other of its officers, has made no reasonable request on this office that has not been promptly granted. Since I have come to this office this department has had no business with Patrolman McCaffrey.

REGRETS PUBLICITY.

"If, perchance, there is, or hereafter should be, any just occasion for criticism of this department by any officer of your force, I know you personally too well to believe that you will delegate the unpleasant duty of publicly censuring us. It is apparent that this patrolman acted principally at his own self-glorification, indifferent to the injustice he was doing me and forgetful even of the standard of conduct most becoming to an officer of your department. I would not, therefore, now challenge his injudicious language were it not that what he has said was given a circulation it does not merit."

Declares Bad Eggs Are Sold in Boston

Putrid eggs were foisterd on the Boston public and comission dealers protected through a graft pool subscribed to by them and paid certain officials for protection, Patrolman George H. McCaffrey, for many years a special food investigator for the city, charged today.

"This awful practice was only broken up through the efforts of Health Board officials, headed by Dr. William C. Woodward," he said. "The dealers pooled money and gave it out as protection graft. Who got it, I don't know, but they were well protected until the practice was stopped.

"If it ended there for all time, it would be merely touching on a bad spot in civic history, but it is liable to recur any moment unless dealers are rigidly watched, and their products carefully inspected.

DISROBING OF PUPILS STARTS ROW IN NORTON PUBLIC SCHOOLS

THREATENS ARREST OF DOCTOR

Father's Protest Followed by Physician's Warning That He Will Resign.

Norton, April 22.—The regulation which requires all pupils in the public schools here to undergo an examination, stripped to the waist, by the school physician each year was denounced as "disgraceful and disgusting" by Walter C. S. Wood, business man, who threatens to withdraw his son, Arthur, from school if it is not discontinued.

There are more than 200 girls in the school.

Dr. Earl R. White, school physician, examines the pupils privately, disrobing them from the waist upward in making the heart and lung tests.

The situation reached a climax when Dr. White and Wood clashed in the schoolroom. Wood declares that the physician threatened to eject him forcibly from the room because he objected to his method of procedure.

ALLEGES PROFANITY.

Dr. White, on the other hand, asserts that he was compelled to take action because Wood used profane language in the presence of the teacher, a nurse and several school children.

The physician adds that he has been instructed by the School Board to conduct a thorough physical examination of every pupil in the school. He points out, however, that parents who object to this may have their own doctor examine their children.

In the case of students above the fourth grade, the doctor says, he requires the disrobing only in "extreme cases." The practice is customary, he says, and is carried out in other towns.

"I will fight this case to the limit," declared Wood.

"If Mr. Wood is not restrained I will resign my position!" counters Dr. White.

TO CALL MASS MEETING.

If Dr. White persists in carrying out this regulation and tries to examine Arthur Wood, who is in the seventh grade, Wood says he will have the physician arrested for assault. He asserts that parents of other pupils are with him in his stand.

Dr. White is a Tufts College graduate and was an athlete of note while in school.

As a final step, Wood threatens to start a house-to-house campaign against the examination system and to call a public indignation meeting to protest against it.

The School Board has promised to consider the matter.

FARMER CORED TO DEATH BY BULL IN BARN

Bloomfield, Conn., April 22.—Mark K. Skowolsky, a farmer, was gored and trampled to death by a bull in his barn here. His wife found the body in a box stall with the animal.

Mr. Automobile Buyer!

When you buy a used car, you naturally expect to pay a reasonable price for it. But price is only one consideration. The condition and appearance of the car and the amount of service which it will give, are also highly important.

If you want to get these qualities in their right proportions, read the "Automobile Exchange" columns of The American. They contain a long list of good used cars which will prove highly satisfactory in service and in price.

Make a note of those that interest you today and talk them over with the dealers. Spring is the time when such a car will bring its greatest pleasure to you and your family. Today is the day to investigate.

Natick Man Falls in Fire While Burning Leaves; Dies

Natick, April 22.—Perry Dowse, sixty years old, well-known resident of Sherborn, while burning leaves early today, suffered a shock, fell into the fire and was burned so severely that he died from the effects.

When found, his position showed that he had attempted to tear the burning clothing from his body.

SAVES BABY IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

Bending close over the body of a nine-months-old infant which was suffering from diphtheria, James Buxton formed a shield of his own body and protected the child from a shower of broken glass when an ambulance in which the infant was being carried to the hospital was smashed by a touring car at Otis and Summer streets.

Buxton, a hospital attendant, was sitting in the ambulance with little Joseph Bass, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bass, of No. 79 Salem street, North End, in his arms.

BRAVED INFECTION.

As the ambulance spun down the street a touring car, containing several couples bound from Providence to Boston, crashed squarely into it.

Quick as a flash, the attendant had bent close over the child's body, regardless of the danger of infection.

A shower of glass from the windshields of both cars shot over the ambulance seat. Buxton's clothes were cut and he received a number of minor hurts.

AMBULANCE WRECKED.

But little Joseph was uninjured.

The ambulance was completely wrecked. Neither Buxton nor the driver, John Kelcher, was badly hurt.

The touring car was driven by John M. Clayton of Providence, who escaped injury.

Buxton got another car and brought the child to the hospital in good shape.

He will leave for Boston later in the day.

The Cardinal is expected to step ashore from the liner Arabic at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Heavy seas caused by a heavy gale has delayed the ship almost twenty-four hours.

A committee of prominent diocesan clergymen will greet the Cardinal at the pier, a monster reception being planned for when he reached Boston.

DANIELS ATTACKS OIL LEASES

By International News Service.

Washington, April 22.—Former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels poured a broadside of hot shot on his arrival here today into the Harding administration for leasing the naval oil reserves of California and Wyoming to private interests.

Stripped for action, as he laughingly expressed it, Daniels declared he was ready to join in the fight begun by Senators LaFollette, Republican, of Wisconsin, and Kendrick, Democrat, of Wyoming, to prevent the government's oil lands from being "exploited from private profit."

FIRES DRIVE 50 PERSONS TO STREETS

Fires today in Brookline, Back Bay and Winthrop Centre drove 50 persons into the streets in night clothes, caused one girl to leap from a second-story window when hysterical with fright and prompted several spectacular rescues.

No reason can be ascertained for a blaze at any of the buildings.

In Brookline the fire had been smoldering some time. Five servants were rescued, but a frightened maid leaped in her nightdress before she could be reached.

In the Back Bay blaze a score of apartment occupants, including several girl college students, fled in scant attire down fire escapes.

The apparatus aroused the neighborhood, densely settled with men and girl college students. Great excitement prevailed.

POLICEMEN HEROES.

At two of the fires heroes were policemen, Patrolman Grimley of the Back Bay station and Patrolman Wells of Winthrop.

The Brookline blaze fired the home of Philip M. Sears, Boston attorney, at No. 260 Heath street. It started in the basement and was discovered by Johanna Lynch, a maid, awakened by dense smoke. She ran to a window and screamed. Michael D'Arcy, butler, occupying a nearby cottage with Patrick Connolly, chauffeur, responded with ladders. They rescued Nora D'Arcy, Margaret Dunn, Bridget Sullivan, Miss Lynch and Catherine Hall. Margaret Finn, a maid, leaped to the ground and required medical attention. The blaze was extinguished with a loss of $2,000.

The Back Bay blaze was discovered at 27 and 28 Stephen street by Patrolman Grimley. Thin wisps of smoke were curling from cracks in a cellar window. He rang in the fire alarm and aroused tenants. Occupants in night attire fled from their beds and escaped down fire escapes. Clanging apparatus aroused the neighborhood. When it was discovered nobody had been hurt and the fire under control college boys in nearby windows and some on the sidewalks in bathrobes made a Saturday morning "no-school" holiday festival of the incident. Damage was $2,000.

THOSE DRIVEN OUT.

Those who fled were Elma Ingeman, S. T. Reed, Annie M. Dillings, A. S. Trammell, Mrs. E. Fay Saunders, Miss F. M. Sanger, Miss Lucy Ferguson, Alice Watts, O. B. Hathaway, W. H. Hobart, W. E. Rodgers, Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Stewart, Miss McIntyre, Ruth W. Kendrick, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Tinnell and their son-in-law, R. A. Sawyer and wife; Mrs. Joseph Lyons and son; Mrs. Clifton Mills and baby and Mr. and Mrs. A. Gerocke.

Fourteen persons in an adjoining apartment house were prepared to leave if necessary. The loss was $5,000.

Families forced into the street were sheltered in the apartment of Dr. Horace Saule, Winthrop street.

Boiler Explodes at Providence Blaze

Providence, April 22.—Jesse Driver, watchman at No. 19 Marvin street, trapped by flames that destroyed the building, was forced to leap into a fire net from the roof of the house early today. A number of houses nearby were menaced by the flames, which did $15,000 damage.

A few moments after the firemen arrived a boiler exploded, throwing flaming debris and sparks over the fire-fighters and the surrounding houses.

The blast blew one of the 25-foot tubes through the wall of the Providence Coat and Apron Supply Company, the wall of the adjoining house, No. 140 Oak street, and deep into the wall on the opposite side of that house. Other tubes were hurled into Oak street, a distance of 100 feet. No one was injured.

GIRL WITNESS IN JAIL FLIGHT TRIAL

MISS ROBINA ROFE

Sweetheart of Victor Nelson, State prisoner, who told of letters sent through hands of one of two men tried for aiding Nelson in his sensational escape from Charlestown. Nelson later surrendered and is now serving an extra term for his escape.

CONVICT LOYAL TO PALS WHO AIDED FLIGHT

Loyal to the men who harbored him after his sensational escape from State prison at Charlestown, Victor Nelson, convict of many aliases, refused to testify in the Superior Court at East Cambridge at the trial of Ernest Theodoros and Michael Pappas, on charges of being accessories after the fact in the escape.

Both men were found guilty. The former was sentenced to one year and the latter to ten months in the House of Correction.

Robina Rofe, sweetheart of Nelson, had testified that she received a letter from Nelson following his escape, in which he lauded Theodoros. Communication was established between herself and Nelson through Theodoros, she testified.

Nelson was then called by Assistant District Attorney Blood.

Judge Brown warned the witness that he was legally summoned and must answer questions.

"I won't testify against my friends and I'll take the consequences," Nelson told the court.

"And I'll take care of you later," Judge Brown stated; but at court adjournment the man was returned to prison without added sentence.

Nelson, who is twenty-four years old, has a wife and child in New York city.

He was arrested in December, 1920, and sentenced to from five to five years after conviction on charges of larceny and assault and battery.

One of the most sensational escapes in prison annals was made by Nelson the following May when, walking in line from the school on Cherry Hill, he suddenly scaled the prison wall, and vanished.

He successfully eluded all pursuit and, many months later, returned voluntarily to prison at the instigation of Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing.

An additional sentence of from one to and one-half years was imposed for the escape.

FRANCE HOLDS GERMAN REPLY INADEQUATE

By International News Service.

Genoa, April 22.—Germany's reply to the Allies regarding the Russo-German treaty was inadequate, it is declared in a letter M. Barthou, head of the French delegation today sent to Premier Facta of Italy, President of the conference.

Genoa, April 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—Work on a plan for the reconstruction of Russia was started today by experts representing the Soviet government, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia and Holland.

The idea of the financial and economic experts is that when Russia reaches a position where she can give investors assurances there will be legal basis for undertakings in Russia and that foreigners will have protection under proper courts, abundant credits will be forthcoming for the development of Russian resources.

The International Harvester Company and many other prominent corporations having factories or mines in Russia have declined to consider taking concessions to operate the properties they stoutly contend are theirs, and not owned by the Soviet government.

Hope that a world conference, with the United States participating, will be held after the Genoa meeting is over was expressed by the German Chancellor, Dr. Wirth, at a meeting of Germans.

The French delegation has submitted a protest against the German reply to the Allied note in which the Germans stated they would refrain from discussing Russian questions settled in the Russo-German treaty. The French contend that the Germans, under their reply may insist upon discussing other Russian questions.

BROWN'S BRIDE GOT OFFER OF MARRIAGE

Taunton, April 22.—How a married woman, whose husband, she alleges, threatened to turn her out of the house, answered a newspaper advertisement for a housekeeper and discovered that the advertiser really wanted a wife was disclosed in the local Probate Court during the separate support suit brought by Mrs. Margaret E. Brown of Norton.

Mrs. Brown formerly conducted a manicure shop in Newton Highlands, and previously was a milliner at No. 77 Bedford street, Boston.

She was married to Orlando W. Brown in October of last year. She gave her age as thirty-nine.

FOUND MARRIAGE OFFER.

Brown had introduced a letter, at the divorce hearing, which he said he found in his wife's possession a month or so after their marriage. The letter was a marriage proposal signed by P. M. Boothman of Skinner, Me. Boothman gave his age in the letter as sixty years, and said he was a widower.

The letter contained a description of Boothman, including the fact that he was a teetotaler and ran a poultry farm. He said he was looking for a wife and requested Mrs. Brown to reply as soon as possible, because he had other women applicants besides herself.

Mrs. Brown declared that she found an advertisement in a Boston newspaper inserted by Boothman, asking for a housekeeper.

"My husband objected to me to put me out of the house," she said. "I had to find something to do to support myself, so I answered the advertisement. Then, when Mr. Boothman replied, I discovered that he was really advertising for a wife. Of course I had nothing further to do with it."

BRIDESMAID FAVORS HUSBAND

Miss Mary Butler of No. 40 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, a bridesmaid at the wedding last Fall, took the stand as a witness for the husband. After she had testified that Mrs. Brown, whom she had known for years, had a violent temper, the plaintiff's counsel asked her if she had not been induced to testify "because you have a soft spot in your heart for Mr. Brown?"

She laughed and shook her head.

"Soft spot for him?—Oh, no," she replied. "I could have had him before Mrs. Brown got him, if I'd wanted him."

Mrs. Brown said that she had had $350 saved up when she was married. Following the wedding, however, she said she discovered her husband had only $6, which quickly disappeared. She was obliged to pay for the furniture and for the cost of moving, she said, and the residue of her savings she loaned to her husband—a debt he afterwards refused to pay.

Hearings in the case will be resumed Monday.

COAL MART DULL DESPITE STRIKE

Chicago, April 22.—With the coal strike closing its third week of idleness far more than 600,000 men, a survey of some of the fields shows an accumulation of loaded cars on siding with the market dull.

Central Illinois operators today reported 2,500 loaded cars awaiting orders, and Southern Illinois 3,638 more. The total in all Illinois fields is nearly 10,000.

Trade reports here show practically no demand for industrial or domestic coal except for use in steel plants from the West Virginia and Kentucky fields.

Scientist Discovers Way of Producing Cold Light

Princeton, N. J., April 22.—Professor E. Newton Harvey, after eight years of experimental work with luminous bodied insects, has discovered the means through which cold light may be produced, it was announced at Princeton University.

A form of light giving a continuous glow like that in bodies of the insects has been developed by the professor, who now is making an effort to intensify and perfect the light, so that it will be of practical use.

Professor Harvey's light-producing substance, which comes from a small crustacean about the size of a flea, imported from Japan, is called luciferin. It does not differ from that which lights up the glowworm and the firefly, and causes decaying wood and leaves to glow.

2 TO 4 MONTHS COAL SUPPLY ON HAND

Massachusetts had 720,000 tons of hard coal on hand April 1, enough to carry its people through the Summer and into the Fall, according to a State-wide survey completed and announced today by Fuel Administrator Eugene C. Hultman. Of that amount 264,000 tons are in Greater Boston.

There is enough soft coal on hand to last from two to four months, Hultman said.

In view of the coal stocks available and the further fact that prices are likely to drop, Hultman advised the people to buy no more coal than is absolutely necessary for their immediate needs.

Although production is suspended, Hultman said Massachusetts will not experience difficulty in either quantity or prices unless the strike runs over June 1.

SECRET PLAN TO END MILL STRIKE

Lawrence, April 22.—Unless the Lawrence woes battle between nearly 20,000 strikers and the heads of seven mills where the strike has been in effect four weeks is soon settled a unique plan discussed between Governor Channing Cox and ex-Mayor William P. White of this city will be immediately executed, according to the former city official.

White, like the strike leaders, is opposed to the plan of the citizen's strike committee. He refuses to divulge the nature of the proposed settlement.

Two meetings, at which delegates were named to meet the mill men, were the first tangible steps taken to end the struggle today and a third out. A third meeting to have been held by the Everett Mills at the Hood School was called off because of the few who showed interest in attending.

CARNES LIABLE TO FACE TRIAL

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson said today that he had received a letter from Police Sergeant Albert E. Carnes, named in the Civil Service scandal as the man who sold questions to candidates for examinations, in which Carnes pointed out that he had not attended the hearing which the Police Trial Board offered him because he had already resigned from the department.

The commissioner remarked that Carnes' resignation did not relieve him from the obligation to appear before the trial board. The resignation is not as yet acted on, he said, and Carnes filed it after charges had been preferred against him.

TELLS POLICE OF DRUG REVELS IN LYNN

Dope Pedlars Canvassed for Recruits, Man Seized in Raid Declares

As the result of revelations made today by Frederick Brown of Lynn, arrested with the other men and three girls in a drug raid on a lodging house in Summer street, that city, Lynn police launched a sweeping campaign to round up all drug peddlers and addicts in the community.

According to the police, Brown stated that the house was the headquarters of a powerful dope ring that operated in Lynn, Chelsea, Revere, Salem and other nearby cities and towns.

He said at times the place was the rendezvous of dope parties numbering twenty-five or more addicts. These gatherings, he claimed, had been going on for several months.

Dope peddlers, he stated, operated from the house and both peddled drugs and sought recruits for the parties in all surrounding communities.

DRUG OUTFITS SEIZED.

Brown made his statement in asking for a light sentence or probation. He made his revelations to Deputy Police Chief Edward C. Callahan.

The raid, made in accordance with Mayor McPherson's vice crusade orders, was one of the biggest ever staged in the city. Morphine, opium and a number of hypodermic needles were seized.

At the police station the prisoners gave their names as Miss Marjorie Sullivan of Lowell, Miss Mabel Reddington of Lynn, Mrs. Ella Savio of Lynn, Samuel Posner of Lowell and Fred Brown of Lynn.

In court all were charged with being present where drugs were found. Their cases were continued until Monday. In the meantime the police were instructed to bring in the owner of the house. The defendants were held in under $500 bonds each until that date.

A large squad of officers, headed by Sergeants Egan and Muckian, went to the front door of the lodging house with patrol wagons. Stationing several officers at rear exits and fire escapes, the raiding party entered the building.

In a second-floor room they found Brown and Mrs. Savio. A quantity of "dope," with such paraphernalia as needles, pipes and the like, is said to have been found on a table.

Other officers, penetrating into a room on the third floor, found Posner with Miss Sullivan, and Miss Reddington. Miss Reddington is a chambermaid in the lodging house. According to the officers, all were under the influence of the drug when arrested.

A quantity of morphine and needles is said to have been found in this room also.

SEEKING TWO MORE

A large crowd of people, attracted by the sight of the patrol wagons and armed policemen stationed in the street before the lodging house while the raid was in progress and gaped at the prisoners as they were led away to the station.

The police were disappointed at the fact that a man and woman, said to be the leading drug pedlars in Lynn, and thought to be making this lodging house their headquarters, were not present when the raid was made. A search is still being conducted for them.

DINNER SET IN BIKE RUN PRIZE FOR WOMEN

"Does your mother ride a bike?"... Remember the old song?

Well, if she does, here's good news for her. The first prize in the women's class for perfection in riding at the third annual bicycle run of the Boston American on Sunday afternoon, April 30, will be a 42-piece dinner set. Some prize!

Now, ladies, it will cost you nothing to win that dinner set. All you have to do is cut out the entry coupon in an adjoining column, fill in your name and address and forward to the bicycle editor. Then, on Sunday afternoon, April 30, prove to the judges by the manner in which you ride your bicycle at the Franklin Field contests that you are the best woman rider in attendance and the dinner set is yours. Girls over fifteen years of age are eligible for this handsome prize, the gift of Buffalo Specialty Company of Buffalo, N. Y.

MANY FINE PRIZES.

Another fine prize, in the form of a gold medal, has been added to the boys' class for perfection in riding. It is the gift of the Emblem Manufacturing Company of Arcola, N. Y. The total number of prizes that will be awarded free during the contest, which will conclude the six-mile ride from Copley square has now reached forty-two.

Mounted on his 54-inch high wheel of Civil War days, George H. Leavitt of North Hampton, N. H., will take part in the American's run. He had such a good time last year that he wrote he wouldn't miss the party this month for anything. Mr. Leavitt planned on riding his "highboy" of other days the entire 50 miles from his hohme to Boston but upon inquiry learned that the country roads are not in proper condition for such a task. With other high wheel riders he will ride at the head of the procession in an honor place.

Sixty-nine-year-old Thomas Halfrey of No. 70 Paxon street, Newton, who was the oldest rider in last year's run, has entered again for this season's outing. Mr. Halfrey says bicycling keeps his spirit young. He considers it an ideal form of exercise and recreation.

—Fresh From Paris— Latest From Marie Suzanne

Paris, France.

JADE green taffeta is decidedly smart this season, and never more so than when it drapes its bodice and narrowly bands its shoulders with gold lace. The low, twisted girdle makes a second waistline (two sometimes are not too many, according to Paris), while the uncertain length of the skirt is accentuated by a triple cording that follows it about.

THE slenderness of an evening gown from Maison Yteb is brought about by the length of line of its straight lace tunic. The mode that adores lavish color sponsors the combining of rose mousseline de soie with tango — which tone appears in the lace tunic — and adds a charming girdle of mattier blue beads.

PHONE ROMANCE DISCLOSED BY THEATRE MAN

A romance that had its inception when a telephone operator was unable to secure a number for a Boston theatrical man, and paused to talk with him during the delay, was revealed when Henry J. Hunt, treasurer of two local theatres, filed intentions to marry Miss Alice A. Lenihan of No. 72-A Clifton street, Dorchester.

Miss Lenihan, who is twenty-six years old, is a telephone operator. She tells the story as follows:

"Late one night I was asked to call Brighton, 2222-M—Mr. Hunt's house telephone, though I didn't know him at the time. There was a little delay in putting the call through, and Mr. Hunt started to talk to me.

"That's against the rules, you know—but there must be something in this 'personal magnetism' they talk about, because I couldn't help talking with him.

"I gave him my number—he called up the exchange next day, and got my name and address—and then he came to see me. And—well, that's all there is to say."

Mr. Hunt is forty-three years old, and lives at No. 7 Boulevard Terrace, Allston. No definite date has yet been set for the wedding.

The speakers will be Michael H. Hastings, Jeremiah Carroll, William Wheelan, and Dr. Katherine A. Fenelon, who will also preside. Mrs. Helen C. Galvin and Miss Josephine Flemming will sing and Miss Maura Quinn and Michael McCarthy will recite.

An engagement party was tendered Misses Mollie Degnan and Alice McDonnell, of South Boston, by the Isle d'Armour Girls at the home of Mrs. Philip A. Chapman, No. 5 Sudan street, Dorchester. Miss Degnan, supervisor of the South Boston telephone exchange, recently announced her engagement to Michael J. Concannon, a business man of Lowell, and Miss McDonald announced her engagement to Joseph F. McLean, an official at City Hall. Both girls received many gifts.

B. & A. TO CLOSE W. SPRINGFIELD ENGINE SHOP

The Boston & Albany Railroad announced today that at the close of business on April 26 its locomotive shops at West Springfield would be closed for an indefinite period. The shutdown will affect about 325 men.

A marked falling off in business, due in large measure to the coal strike, was assigned as the reason. The car shops at West Springfield will run on full time for the present.

FIRST CLASS RATES TO SOUTH AMERICA CUT

New York, April 22.—Reductions ranging from $100 to $120 on one-way first class passenger tickets were announced by two steamship companies operating to South American ports. The reductions are effective May 1.

MOVE TO OUST GILLETT AS SPEAKER

Washington, April 22.—A bitter fight for control of the Republican organization in the House, in the event that the G. O. P. retains its majority at the November elections, already is looming up.

The cry of "Massachusetts in the saddle" again is being taken up preliminary to the launching of a movement to supplant Speaker Gillett, who out of the big four Representatives of the Bay State in Congress and the administration seems doomed to be the first to get the axe.

"TOO MUCH BAY STATE."

Mr. Gillett, Vice-President Coolidge, Senator Lodge, the majority leader in the upper House, and chairman of the important foreign relations committee, and Secretary of War Weeks all hail from Massachusetts. Hence, the cry against the Bay State power.

Those Middle Western Republican Representatives who are openly for a new deal all around in the next Congress, are predicting that Speaker Gillett, now completing his second term, will clear the way by not standing for a third term. The Speaker's friends, however, declare a majority of the Republican members of the new House will have to formally elect a successor before Gillett yields his gavel.

The matter of a new floor leader has been simplified by the decision of Representative Mondell of Wyoming, the present leader, to stand for the Republican Senatorial nomination. This means he will not be back in the House, regardless of whether he wins or loses for the Senate.

HURTS WALSH'S CHANCE.

Leaders in the movement for a thorough reorganization are claiming the circumstances are developing rapidly in their favor. For example, the heaviest Republican loss se, they predict, will be in the East, while in the Middle West, which wants to floor leader or Speaker the emergency tariff, forced through by the farm bloc, has made things pretty safe for the Republicans. Any reduction in the quota of Eastern representatives, without corresponding decreases in other sections, of course, will weaken Gillett's chances just that much.

Three names just now are more prominently mentioned than any others for the floor leadership. They are: Representatives Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio; Sydney Anderson, Minnesota, and Joseph Walsh, Massachusetts.

If the movement to supplant Gillett should take definite form on the theory that Massachusetts now has too much power, it is quite obvious that Walsh will not be favored for one of the two highest honors.

COAKLEY PLANS WHOLESALE BUSINESS

Daniel H. Coakley, disbarred as an attorney before the Massachusetts bar, has become a merchant.

He is organizing a wholesale business on a large scale, and of which he will be the active head.

Into the organization, the scope of which will be country-wide, the former attorney will put all the vigor and resourcefulness that has characterized his famous career as a criminal lawyer.

Certain loyal friends who have taken their stand with "Dan" Coakley all through the recent procedure against him are understood to have been chosen as subsidiary heads of the organization which will have headquarters in Boston. The exact nature of the enterprise is not known.

Mr. Coakley is non-committal on the matter himself, but friends believe that following his entrance into the business world he will at an opportune time file a petition with a justice of the Supreme or Superior Courts for reinstatement as a lawyer.

Attorney-General Allen, following the court's decision, gave no indication that he would attempt to bring criminal prosecution against Mr. Coakley. It had been understood until very recently that the Attorney-General would go before the Suffolk County Grand Jury and present a case.

ARBUCKLE HAS DEFENDERS AND FOES

American Readers Divided on Allowing Fat Comedian to "Come Back"

Should "Fatty" Arbuckle screen a come-back?

Some say "Yes," some say "No."

Letters are pouring into the Film Editor, some denouncing the once rotund comedian, others urging that he be given another chance.

What say you? Write your opinion to the Film Editor, Boston American.

Here are some of the last batch of letters, there are thousands pouring in:

"Just a line to let you know I am one who is for giving Fatty the chance to come back. Why not? My wife says the same. Who are you that you should condemn him? What a glorious feeling it would be for you were he your son and in the same place and they said: Come back. Fair play. Look in your own history and see how you stand before you condemn another. 'Go forth and sin no more.' So reads Scripture. Wishing you luck Mr. Editor for I know it means much to Mr. Arbuckle. I am yours sincerely, J. W. Finard, a blacksmith, Danvers."

WOULD STAY AWAY.

"Certainly I want to see the Arbuckle pictures again. He is no worse than a lot of folks." Signed "A Reader."

"I do not believe that films featuring Arbuckle should be shown again. Personally my family or myself would not patronize a theatre where an Arbuckle picture was showing." Mrs. E. Dutton of No. 81 Everton street, Dorchester.

"Stop the Arbuckle pictures. It will be a good temperance lecture to the world." Mrs. G. W. Fernald of No. 81 Washington avenue, Waltham.

"I belong to several organizations and every member I have spoken to of the Arbuckle films want to see them barred from every theatre in the country." Thomas Cavanaugh of No. 23 Cook street, Charlestown.

"Keep Arbuckle where he belongs, if not behind the bars at least off the screen." Irene M. Price of No. 42 Savin street, Roxbury.

DEFEND "FATTY."

"Relative to 'Fatty' Arbuckle, twelve American citizens have adjudged him 'not guilty.' Let us abide by the laws of our country." J. E. Settles of No. 185 Devonshire street.

"As for my part I would like to have Mr. Arbuckle's pictures shown again. His department has nothing to do with his pictures." Miss Ella Swansur of No. 53 Chestnut street, Randolph.

"By all means let us have Fatty Arbuckle back again. There are none of us but at some time or other have made a mistake." Mrs. Fred Wabble of No. 38 Oliver street, Fitchburg.

What do you say, reader? Let's hear from you.

The WELL-DRESSED MAN

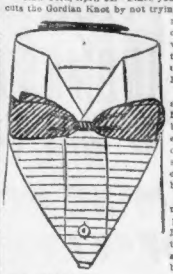
By ALFRED STEPHEN BRYAN

What to Wear and How to Wear It.

Copyright, 1922, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Striped Shirt-Bosoms to the Front

New York, April 22.—Since you cannot please everybody, Fashion cuts the Gordian Knot by not trying to please anybody. Some modes no sooner come out than they go out, because the generality of men will have none of them. Yet, as they are just as likely to be taken up as tossed aside, the Whirligig of Fashion keeps on revolving.



A case in point—the cross-striped shirt-bosom, illustrated here. You do not like it, perhaps, but others may ask leave to dissent. They think it is smart and out of the common, especially if a suggestion of formality be attempted by wearing a wing collar and a bow-knot tie.

The cross-striped bosom is in no sense an innovation. It has appeared, disappeared, reappeared. It was the badge of the elderly beau twenty-five years ago. It is the simplest of designs, though more becoming to the slender figure than to the thickset one.

The plain-colored tie or the diagonally stripe tie, as reproduced, goes best with the cross-striped bosom. The straight-striped tie is not suited to it, as the combination of stripes running the same in cravat and shirt produces an eccentric, if not comic, effect.

Trousers and Boots

Not only are narrow trousers on their last legs; they never, indeed, had a leg to stand upon. The pitifully cut of trousers, often seen during the last few years, was never approved by well-dressed men. Trousers must be straight and full, so that, in sitting, they may be drawn up easily and comfortably.

Quite a few extremists are having trousers cut extra wide, as they are worn in London and Paris. Sometimes there is a slight flex or flare or spread over the instep, but this should be a mere insinuation, like wrinkling at the druggist. Expanding pleats on trousers above the termina of the centre crease at the top have been adopted for the purpose of obviating any strain from the side pockets in which small articles are carried.

Following trousers down to boots, the varnished (patent) leather model, pictured here, is uncommon in that a narrow strip of patent leather spans the centre of the upper. The toe is squarish or spade-shaped, instead of oval. The beveled sole is an extension and the heel is low and broad. This is a formal walking boot, as buttons are always the mark of ceremonious dress.

NOTE—Questions concerning Correct Dress for Men will be answered by Alfred Stephen Bryan, if addressed to him in care of this newspaper. To insure a reply, a stamped envelope must be enclosed.

MUSIC NOTES

One soloist who will make her debut before a Boston audience and three others who have already been heard in this city will appear with the People's Choral Union in "The Messiah" at Symphony Hall on Sunday, April 30. The new singer is Miss Jeanette Vreeland, a young lady from the Far West who appeared in public for the first time as a concert singer only last January, and whose success has been meteoric. She has already been engaged as a soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra next season.

ASHLEY PETTIS

On Tuesday afternoon, May 2, Mr. Ashley pettis, a young American pianist from California, will make his first appearance before a Boston public in a piano recital. He is said to be among the most promising of the younger generation of American musicians. He has played with several of the Symphony Orchestras in the West. He is a pupil of Oscar Weil of San Francisco and Paolo Gallico of New York. His program would show that he is alive to the musical side of piano playing as distinguished from the merely technical display. The program ranges from Bach and Haydn through Liszt and Debussy, including also de Pachmann's "Rhapsodic Prelude," dedicated to Pettis.

NINA TARASOVA

The closing Sunday afternoon concert of the L. H. Mudgett season in Symphony Hall will take place on Sunday, April 30, at 3:30, and will be given by Nina Tarasova, the celebrated Russian singer. This artist was praised in the highest terms in her two former appearances in Boston. Her program, as usual, will be drawn entirely from the wealth of folk songs of her country and will be sung in peasant costume and in the Russian language.

POPS TO HAVE GALA OPENING

On Monday, May 1, the thirty-seventh season of the celebrated Pop concerts begins. Agide Jacchia, famous conductor of opera, of choral and symphony concerts on two continents, and most highly exalted of all Pop conductors, will enter upon his sixth season at the head of the superfine symphony orchestra which makes the Pop a rare institution—an institution absolutely unrivalled anywhere. Every species of music is to be heard, from operetta to the full-fledged symphonic piece, from the mighty opera to the sentimental revery.

On Tuesday night of the first week Wellesley will celebrate in numbers with a group of songs by the Wellesley Glee Club. This night and every other is open to the public and is of particular public interest. Thursday night will bring a Russian program.

CLOSING SYMPHONY

Rimsky-Korsakoff's symphonic suite "Scheherezade" will be the last number on the twenty-fourth regular program of Symphony concerts to be given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Symphony Hall next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening and will therefore close the Symphony concert season.

MAY FESTIVAL

The advent of Spring brings once more Mrs. Butler's May Festival, the 34th anniversary of this famous spectacle.

First among them, the solo dancer is Mrs. Mabelle Patten. Francis Aldrich and Horce S. Banister have another treat this year, a novel surprise. Lilla Frances Villes, ever a favorite, is ready with a charming bit as usual.

ROMANCE ENDS IN WEDDING AT EXPOSITION

A romance of school days culminated in Grant Hall, Mechanics Building, when Miss Miriam E. Ball of Swampscott became the bride of Russell B. Palmer of Utica, N. Y., before 10,000 people visiting the Home Beautiful Exposition.

Garlands of smilax, interspersed with potted ferns and silver urns, made a wonderful setting for the occasion. Overhead a large wedding bell, filled with confetti, was emptied at conclusion of the nuptials.

The bride carried a large shower bouquet of lillies of the valley and orchids furnished by T. F. Galvin, Inc. Miss Helen Mowry of Framingham was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Helen L. Gould of Wellesley and Miss Eunice Mowry, a sister of the maid of honor. The Rev. L. W. Sneath, pastor of the Wollaston Congregational Church, officiated.

Following a reception the couple were escorted to the Hotel Lenox, where Chester I. Campbell, general manager of the exposition, was their guest at a wedding supper. The couple were the recipients of $200 in gold, a present from Mr. Campbell, and many gifts from exhibitors.

JACK DEMPSEY IS DINNER GUEST OF LORD NORTHCLIFFE

CHAMPION MEETS BIG ENGLISH LIONS

By DAMON RUNYON.

London, April 22.—Looking fresh, young and more boyish than ever in contrast with his grave and elderly companions, Jack Dempsey sat at luncheon with some of the most distinguished men in England.

The heavyweight champion was the guest of Lord Northcliffe, famous owner of the London Times, Daily Mail and other newspapers, and one of the most powerful factors in English political life.

The luncheon took place in Lord Northcliffe's town house in a big dining hall, with magnificent paintings on the wall, where scores of the most famous men in the world have been entertained. Servants in livery moved noiselessly about.

It was an atmosphere calculated to subdue any man, but Dempsey was not embarrassed. Jack was ostensibly at ease during the entire affair.

Dempsey was escorted to the Northcliffe house by Tom Webster, famous English sport cartoonist on Northcliffe papers, and was received by Lord Northcliffe in the drawing room.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager was unable to attend the function because of the enormous amount of correspondence requiring attention. The only Americans present were Dempsey and the correspondent of Universal Service.

Champion Dempsey Says He's Ready

London, April 22.—"When will you be ready to fight any of your European challengers?" a London news writer asked Jack Dempsey, world's champion.

"I'm ready now," shot back the conqueror of Jess Willard and Georges Carpentier.

And he looked it.

Jack Meets Some of England's Famous Men

Dempsey was led about a circle of serious looking men, many of whose names are known throughout the British Empire, by Northcliffe and introduced them to the champion one by one.

"I'm happy to meet you," was Jack's remark to each in a hearty and sincere tone with a white-tooth smile that has won all London.

Lord Northcliffe stood Jack off at arm's length and looked him over carefully commenting admiringly on his physique and general appearance. He asked Dempsey dozens of questions as to his age, and weight. He fed one of the guests, a distinguished looking individual in spats, stand behind Dempsey with arms outstretched to compare the champion's reach.

"Are you Irish?" Lord Northcliffe asked Jack.

Jack Tells Him He's Just a Plain American

"My father is of Irish descent," Jack replied, "but I guess I am just a plain American."

Dempsey and Lord Northcliffe led the way to the dining hall, the champion linking arms with the famous editor, answering questions. Lord Northcliffe looked a good deal like George Horace Lorimer, American magazine editor and talks like Arthur Brisbane in a sharp and incisive tone. Lord Northcliffe entertained Dempsey during luncheon by telling of the time that Brisbane was in London with John L. Sullivan and the then Prince of Wales, afterward King Edward.

"The prince wanted to see Sullivan box," said Lord Northcliffe, "but so great was Sullivan's friendship for Brisbane that John L. would not box unless Brisbane was present. Thus Brisbane scored a big

"Yes, and Brisbane still thinks Sullivan was the greatest fighter who ever lived," said Dempsey.

Inventor of Tank Sat at Champion's Right

General Swinton, who invented the first tanks used in the war, sat at Dempsey's side during the luncheon and the general also asked many questions as to Dempsey's career.

Jack ate only a little toast and drank some coffee, explaining that he has only two meals a day.

Lord Northcliffe asked Jack a great many questions as to his methods of training. When the luncheon was concluded, Lord Northcliffe made a few remarks in which he spoke of Dempsey as the best known American and praised his modest demeanor. He told of his regard for America and Americans, and said that competition in sport enhanced friendly relations between England and America. Lord Northcliffe continued:

"I witnessed the golf tournament last year and felt sure that everyone in England regretted that Bobby Jones and Chick Evans couldn't win.

Will Not Be Able to Develop Man to Beat Him

"Dempsey tells me he is only twenty-six. I was hoping he was thirty-six because he is so young it does not look as if we will be able to develop a man to beat him in many years."

Lord Northcliffe called on Dempsey to make a speech, and the champion said a few words that literally "floored" his auditors.

Jack got up without the slightest embarrassment and standing at the head of the table, trim in a well-fitting serge suit, said:

"I am rather in the position of the Irishman who went to a party where everyone was expected to do something. When it came to his turn he got up and said: 'I can't sing, I can't dance and I can't tell a story, but I will tell you what I'll do. I'll fight anybody in the house.'

Story Never Went So Good as It Did on This Occasion

Dempsey used to tell this same story when he was first trying his hand at vaudeville, but it never went over so big as it did today. The champion then spoke of his wonderful treatment in England.

When the party left the table Lord Northcliffe took Dempsey all over the house, even down into the kitchen, where the champion talked with admiring cooks while his Lordship poked inquiring fingers into various dishes. Inquiring of the contents from the chef.

Lord Northcliffe told Dempsey he would like to meet him again on the champion's return from London and was sorry that he would not have the opportunity of seeing Jack in action. It is said that Lord Northcliffe never witnessed a prize fight in his life.

Dempsey attended a theatre party as the guest of Harry Green, an American actor.

The champion's party leaves today for Paris.

A DEMPSEY DILEMMA

By Charles E. Parker

Said Sir H. J. K. Belvedere, K. C. X., B. V. D.,
To Dempsey at Southampton pier, "I sye—the deuce tyke me—
"It's ripping of you, coming 'ere—eh, what? Astoundingly."

Said Dempsey to Sir H. J. K., "Lay off that Bimbo stuff;
"How do yer Limies get 'at way? Ain't English good enough?
"Jess spout yer piece de nach'ral way, or else I might get rough."

"My word, old topper, what's the stink?" asked Mister Belvedere;
"You jolly well can stryke me pink if yoah not rawther queer.
"Yoah language mykes a blighter think. It's not done over 'ere."

"Say, cul, jess can 'at, 'stryke me pink,' " in answer Dempsey wails;
"I jazzed de pond ter lamp yer kink, an' mitt der Prints er Whales,
"An' pipe dis Lloyd George wise guy gink, an' double O yer frails."

"Just fawncy, now," said Belvedere. "I said, 'lay off,'" shouts Jack.
"Well, cheerio, I'm chawmed yoah 'ere." "Say, do yer want a crack?"

And so 'twill be, it would appear, 'till Dempsey hot-foots back.

SIEGAL SAYS HE IS STILL BOSS OF WELTERS

Nate Siegal wasn't at all pleased when Eddie Shevlin announced to the world he is still the New England welterweight champion. Siegal grabbed a telephone and let the world in on the fact he defeated Shevlin in a bout for the title.

Nate Siegal

"I'm still the welterweight boss," asserted Nate. Didn't I win over Shevlin? I realize the bout was at catchweights, but what does a few pounds amount to among ring warriors?

"Furthermore Shevlin permitted the bout to be advertised as for the New England welterweight title.

School Chatter

A trial race has been arranged among Browne and Nichols, Cambridge Latin and Rindge Tech for Wednesday afternoon over the usual course. When this spin was first arranged the Championship of Cambridge was the title to be awarded to the winner, but MacDonald, who recently took charge of Rindge crew, has requested that the race should not be considered so seriously.

* * *

Just what to expect from Cambridge Latin in the Boston Interscholastic regatta will be shown by the Cantab crew in this spin. The crew that won this race last season will race Brookline High for the B. F. Keith trophy on June 10.

* * *

"Slim" John Harwood is slated to pitch against the Newton batters in today's league game. Should he be as effective against the Garden City batsmen as he was against B. C. High Brookline will have hopes of breaking the losing streak that the team has experienced.

* * *

Jack Leahy of Newton is busting the ball to the four corners of the lot this Spring. He crashed a four-ply rap off the delivery of Pitcher Hall of Everett in their holiday encounter.

* * *

Warren Cote, formerly of Cambridge Latin and now attending Dean Academy, has recovered sufficiently from a severe attack of illness to play for Dean in its opening game.

* * *

Coach Leander McDonald of Cambridge Latin has developed another sticker in the person of Young Dudley, catcher for the team. A split finger caused him to sit out the holiday game. In his turn as a pinch hitter he demonstrated that he can hit the ball on the seam, which will help the Cantab tribe in this year's league fight.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

Well, boys, the season is over. Better put in your requests right now for World Series seats at the Giant and the Cleveland offices. Because the dope declares that beyond doubt the next World Series is to be between the Giants and the Indians.

If it were not for the fact that my head is too full of sixes, fours and eights, all whirling around, to go any further with the dope, I'd tell you right now who will win the series.

All there is between the present date and the world series is about 1,232 ball games, and the dope has shown me exactly and precisely how many of these games each team will win from each other team.

The strange thing is that the Giants, ranking second in team strength, figure to win the National League pennant, chiefly because of the fact that the team seems able to beat its nearest competitors—which is the art of winning championships. Pittsburg, especially, armed with the pitchers and with every element of strength that ought to beat New York, was a sucker for the Giants last season, as all its left-handed pitchers, who should have broken even with the Giants, fell worse than the others did.

The study of team against team pretty well carries out the theory that the strongest team will win. Cleveland figures to capture the American League championship by a narrow margin, and after a hard fight with St. Louis and the Yankees. The Yankee strength, which is so great on paper, does not apply well when fitted to conditions. The Yankees figure to break even with Cleveland and to win the series from all the teams excepting St. Louis. The Yankees still are paying for their blunder in releasing Shocker, and the payment will keep down interest this season. The Yanks figure badly against both Washington and Chicago, each team figuring to win ten games from the champions.

We find Washington figuring to break even with Cleveland. In fact, the showing of Washington against Cleveland ever since they were members of the American League has been one of the freaks of the game. The Senators have been the jinx of Cleveland in every season save one in the last fifteen years—and they have spoiled Cleveland's chances for three pennants at least, and perhaps four.

In the National the dope indicates a fierce struggle before the Giants land the pennant. St. Louis is the dangerous team in this league, just as it is in the rival circuit.

There never has been, so long as I have been studying dope, any league as consistent in strength as is this one if we bar the hopeless Phils. The study of team against team, pitcher against team becomes entrancing when we get down to individual cases. As a matter of fact the great peril to the Giants lies with the Brooklyn team. The entire season, so far as the Giants are concerned, centres upon their series with Brooklyn and with St. Louis. Last season the Cards gave the Giants a great deal of trouble, and during the early part of the season the Dodgers ran amuck and mauled the Giants terrifically.

The pitching forces of the Dodgers appears to hamper the Giants more than any other staff in the league does; but when the Giant pitchers get into form, so that the pitching is anywhere near equal, the Giants win regularly. The Giants amass quite an advantage by their superiority in the series against Pittsburgh, which, however, is not liable to be quite as marked this season as it was last. There is no disputing the fact the Giants had a great deal of luck against Pittsburgh last season or that they won several games that ought to have been lost. Their chief luck, however, was in hitting the Pirates in every series just when the Pittsburgh outfit was shot to pieces. The Giants do not figure to beat Pittsburgh as badly as they did last season, but they still figure to win the series —which is the chief end of the sport.

SUBURBAN HAS FOUR GAMES ON CARD

Suburban league teams will play the second game of their schedule this afternoon when Everett plays Rindge at Russell Field. Brookline plays at Newton, Malden meets Medford and Cambridge Latin tackles Somerville.

This year's fight is far from being the one-sided affair that was the condition last Spring. Every team has shown sufficient class to warrant fast ball games at all the local fields through the season.

Cambridge Latin and Somerville will stage a hot contest. The Somerville team is still smarting under the decisive defeat handed them last season by the Cantabs. Coach Ayer will stur his youngster, Danny McFadden, for this contest, which should be the best card of the afternoon.

Brookline and Newton are well matched. Both schools have a fine assortment of hurlers numbered in their squad which give this contest all the earmarks of a pitchers battle, with John Harwood featuring starring for Newton.

FORMER BANTAM CHAMPION ANXIOUS TO REGAIN CROWN

HERMAN BIDS $40,000 FOR TITLE BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY.

SAM GOLDMAN, manager of Pete Herman, burst forth today with the glad tidings that he was prepared to guarantee the winner of the Johnny Buff-Joe Lynch bout $40,000 for a frolic with his protege. Be it known that Buff and Lynch are booked to collide in a whirl for the world's bantamweight championship at Madison Square Garden, New York, as soon as Buff recovers from gland trouble.

Before Herman can hope to get a shot at either Buff or Lynch, he must dispose of Roy Moore of St. Paul whom he meets in a ten-round contest at the Arena A. C. next Monday night.

This looms forth as quite a quarrel. Herman and Moore are both two-fisted gentlemen and are expected to keep walloping away from bell to bell.

Fans Will See Herman Against a Real Fighter

It will be the first opportunity Boston fans have had of witnessing Herman in action against a real fighter. On his other trips to this city, the New Orleans youth has opposed clever boxers who have relied upon footwork and science to keep out front. Pete battled Young Montreal twice, while he battered his way to a win over Abe Friedman.

Moore, unlike either Montreal or Friedman, will stand up and swap blows with Herman. It will be an old-fashioned conflict with the rivals thinning healthy socks off each other's jaws.

Harold Gammon has made a sure bet at Swampscott. He wears web. Got a free, easy swing and plays them with snap and bite. At eighth hole his mashie tee shot struck dead one half inch from cup. This is the nearest one of the season.

Gammon arrived two months ago from Sheffield, where he was three years pro at Abbeydale Club. He's a veteran, served honorably in British army for four years. Previously was at Woodhouse Golf Club for five years. Has qualified in several British opens, well up. Finalist in South Yorkshire championship. Beaten at 36th hole by Lewis Herrington, 1 down. With A. Day as partner, won the Yorkshire four-somes. Should make local pros hustle for their laurels.

J. Hammond Stewart of the Grounds Committee lets the caddies govern themselves. A personal interest is taken in the boys. They are divided into four sections. Each group of boys are kept busy and out of mischief all the time. Squad A works while B squad plays. In door quarters have been provided with baths and lockers for the boys. There are indoor sport facilities also. Tether ball, quoits, putting grounds, etc., adjoin their caddie-house and they entertain themselves until called. Boys are numbered. They are paroled by their own monitors—a juvenile honor system.

Tedesco boasts the best caddies in the land. Try one in the open when you go to this seaside golf grounds in the summer. Prove it for yourself. A good cady is worth a dozen strokes either way on the card.

Tom Claflin has resigned from Tedesco. He was rated at 5 handicap. Bill Chick is 4, and low man. Other good men are Ed Ingalls, 6, Herbert Holten 7, Bobby Cox 8, H. P. Hood and George Dutton 9 men. They rate them here according to what they do at Tedesco and not what they do elsewhere.

Par at Tedesco is 73—36 out and 37 in. A tough one, too. Few ever equal this or, in fact, better 80. Which is a very good score.

Eugene Clapp is chairman of the grounds committee and without stretching it, he is a live wire. He's in the rubber business. Other members of this committee are J. H. Stewart, E. F. Bachelor and Horace Ingalls. The latter has some excellent plans for the Summer open.

The present ninth hole is 470 yards with the second shot all the way up hill. Nobody can get home in two.

The green is having its surface raised to right in front, and a bit in back, so that the pitch will hold and not kick down hill again. It will be elevated from the centre to the right hand edge about three feet. There are three separate tees on this hole, all in a line. New trap is going in 210 yards from the tee to the extreme right of fairway.

COMEDIANS AT AMATEUR BOXING

A capacity house greeted the more than two score boxers entered in the amateur boxing carnival of the Sacred Heart A. C., held last night in Stimmer Hall, East Boston, and the snappy card of bouts which was presented easily equalled that of last year's successful tourney.

Four classes only were introduced, but in these appeared several near amateur champions who competed earlier in the week in the national championships, and so good were their opponents, that none of the boys had any set-ups.

Some involuntary comedy was sprung on the crowd when East Somerville, a colored boy from Everett, met John Beal of East Boston in the 135-pound class. Somerville was all eagerness for the first thirty seconds, but shortly thereafter he began to make short though frequent trips to the ocean, and it was not long before he heard the fatal "ten."

Another comedian was John Carbone of Roxbury, also in the 135-pound class. John did not have a very tough time with his first opponent, and seemed to have enough leisure in spring some funny stuff on the bowling fans, even though he collected some heavy sockers while doing so.

His appearance in the semi-final however, was marked by more important and pressing business. He found he was stooping too many with various parts of his anatomy, and the second round found him counted out.

The final bout of the evening was the best by far of any. In this bout John Beal of East Boston met Frank Student of the North End. All the way through it was anyone's fight and several times it looked as though either man would win by a knockout. Both weathered the storm of blows, however, and Beal was given the decision. During this bout the fans spent most of the time on their feet yelling like mad.

BALL RIOTS END SCHOOL LEAGUE IN PAWTUCKET

Pawtucket, R. I., April 22.—Baseball games between grammar school teams, which for the past month have been attracting over 5,000 spectators at every contest, have developed so many riots that the Chamber of Commerce has given up control of the league.

Volunteer umpires have been mobbed, spectators have become embroiled in battles royal, and such rough tactics have been employed by the fans that the league has been disbanded, temporarily, at least.

The Chamber of Commerce decines to "assume responsibility for the serious consequences that might happen from unwarranted interference at the games."

PEABODY HIGH BASEBALL TEAM ON STRIKE

By FRED C. LANE

Peabody's high school baseball players are up in arms over the sudden dismissal of their coach, Marty Donovan, by the athletic board of the high school. The players have gone so far as to declare a strike and have refused to play any more of the scheduled games unless their coach is restored to his former position.

The first effects of the strike were felt today when the game with Beverly High, which was to be played at Peabody, was called off. No explanation was forthcoming from those in authority at the school for the cancelling of the game.

Not in years has the town of Peabody been stirred to such a pitch. The dismissal of Donovan came as a surprise to many who were of the opinion that the former mentor was safely entrenched in Emmertown.

Principal Woodman, when questioned on the dismissal of Coach Donovan, said: "Coach Donovan's dismissal was brought about when he violated the conditions of his contract. His contract calls for his appearance at all school games played between April 10 and June 17. This he failed to do, especially when he instructed his boys not to appear for the opening game with the alumni on the holiday."

Principal Woodman also stated that any player who appeared for that game was threatened with immediate expulsion from the squad by the coach.

Regarding the strike of the team, he said:

"If the boys do not care to play baseball, since it is not a necessary part of the high school curriculum, we will give up baseball and will draw from the North Shore League."

EQUIPMENT INADEQUATE.

The athletic board, which is made up of two members of the school board, two citizens and two school boys, then took action. The boys on the school boys had a voice in the matter, these members contend. They were told that the business to be transacted was such that their presence was not wanted, they said.

According to those closely connected with the affair the baseball equipment given Coach Donovan was such as to prevent him from the only member of the squad to have a pair of spiked shoes. In fact the possibilities of developing a team was impossible under such conditions, friends of the coach said.

The playing field on the day for the game was covered with water and but four of the alumni were on hand for the game.

SEEKS DONOVAN'S PLACE.

Faculty Manager Harry A. King has received five applications for the position left vacant by Donovan's dismissal. No action will be taken by the Advisory Board until next week, when a special meeting will be held.

If the players decide to go on without Coach Donovan, steps will be taken toward the appointment of a new coach.

The players claim that Donovan was illegally dismissed, inasmuch as the two student members of the Advisory Board were not present at the meeting at which the action was taken.

The football players who were led by Coach Donovan to the championship of the North Shore League

WILSON VICTOR BY KNOCKOUT IN FOURTH

Hazleton, Pa., April 22.—Johnny Wilson, middleweight champion, knocked out K. O. Jaffe of New York last night in four rounds at the American A. C. This was Wilson's first fight in seven months and he showed championship form.

FOOTBALL CHAMPIONS

Coach Donovan, big supporters claim, was the first coach to ever bring the athletic teams of Peabody to prominence. His baseball team of 1921 was runner-up in the North Shore League race and there is still doubt as to who is the rightful claimant of the title.

The football team won the North Shore League championship last fall and played Charleston High of South Carolina in a North and South battle. Peabody gained such prominence in football circles as to be given the Thanksgiving Day date on the Haverhill High schedule, a game sought by every school of importance in the State.

BRAVES FIGHT FOR ANOTHER VICTORY

By NICK FLATLEY

The other half of the Scott deal will endeavor to become a household word, or a headline fixture, or one of those things, this afternoon at Braves Field. Meaning Richard, or, more popularly, the Rube Marquard. Larry Kopf, the rest of the athletes who came here for the long pitcher with the lame arm, made himself at home in the opener yesterday.

It was the Rube's turn today. He was going to pitch against the Phillies and endeavor to make the Braves winning streak record for the season something better than one game in a row. The Rube has one of those records, anyhow, and now he's ready to collect another.

The ol' boy is likely to please a much larger crowd than did his pal, Larry, for it never can be much worse for baseball than it was yesterday, and we have been promised as fairly pronounceable weather by the very best authorities in that commodity.

Marquard tamed the Phils over at their own fireside without a great deal of bother, and should be able to repeat the performance here, where the fans who are not chosen are very enthusiastic. He has the advantage, too, of stepping forth with a team that seems to have found its nuts with a return to native haunts.

Braves Opened Up in Good Style Even if Cold

The Braves opened up here in very good style, and they had to do it on a tough day, after a very dubious start. They were three runs behind almost before they knew it, and that is the fastest pitchers in the business, but regardless of all that, they walloped right out and won.

Happening of that nature restores courage and confidence, both in fans and players, and a few more exhibitions of a similar kind will have baseball rolling along very smoothly in these parts. Quite a few of our athletes seem to have reserved their hitting efforts for the home stand, and nothing could be fairer than that, except possibly a Summery day.

Hammering Hemery Will Bow to the Populace

Hammering Hemery Gowdy will also bow smilingly to the native populace, and Hemery has reason to grin. He has been hitting the ball and catching at least as well as he ever in did, and, as he says himself, he's already for a return to the happy days of 1914.

Hank and all the rest are now in a proper mood to hustle, and need only a couple of victories to put them in proper form to mow down a lot of opposition that took undue delight when the leaves got away to a powerful start.

Larry Kopf is Boston's latest leading citizen. He became that same when the Braves were properly opening their home season by licking the Phillies, and showing some of the kick and snap that was expected of them, and that, evidently they have finally decided to use in those ball games that they play every day, unless it rains or something.

Larry is the new shortstop of the Mitchellites. He secured the first native run of the year in Boston, in the first frame, and thereby got off to a flying start, and then went on from there on. Naturally he was peeved when that lead was extended and the Phils rendered unto it a flock of runs and it looked like a case of chasing a swift Phil, though it was twice as cold.

So Larry came up to bat in the fourth, by that time, the rest of his gang had snapped out of it a bit, and tied the count with a run. Lucky Hitts guy whanged a hot grounder past short, out between centre and left, and was all the way to the saucer before the ball came back. He just made the play, something after the fatigued fashion of a finishing Marathon runner. His heading slide won't graceful, but was efficient.

The hostile outfielders aided and abetted Larry somewhat by not pursuing the onion with uncanny skill, but none the less and never the same, the run put the gang out in front, and they never retreated after.

2 NOTABLE PERFORMANCES.

That wasn't all our hero did, not a bit of it. Those Phils had to be reckoned with in the fifth, before they finally decided they were downed and Larry did the Simon Legree stunt. Leslie, the first bird up, whizzed a single out over second. Fletcher rolled one down to Holke, who made a quick stab and a perfect throw to second. The ball came into the base, just abaft the runner's right ear, one of the hardest kind of chances the guardians of the cushions have to battle with.

The subject of this sketch plucked the apple right off the large Mister Leslie's brow, then managed to get his mitt under and avert a nasty collision. And he stayed on the bag till he did it. That was quite a play, but the best one was to follow.

Parkinson skimmed a grounder past the box, just to the right of the middle fielder, and Young Kopf was over to the ball, sashayed onto second, and legged to first for the double death, and final extinction of alien hope.

All in all, it was quite a ball game, for a day that would have tested a football crowd, as far as weather went. McQuillan started for the Braves and swapped one inning, even though he did fill the corners with passes. In the second he was smote low and high and every other way, and departed gloomily after the Phils had three runs, and more or less command of the situation.

REVENGE FOR BRAVES.

The Quakers collected another in the fourth, off Fillingim, and that one really made the Braves mad. They pumped the great Lee Meadows in their own region of the flatiron, and responding base knocks by Boeckel, Holke, Ford and O'Neil, combined with dizzy play at the rubber by Catcher Henline, all meant three runs and a tie.

Boeckel and Neis whack scored two of 'em, and with men on second and third Fillingim bounced to short. Fletcher played the ball into the plate perfectly, yards ahead of the runner, but Henline didn't make any effort to tag the latter. Right out. The backstop thought he had a force play, which was a terrible thing to think of that particular crisis. Blow what thinking does, sometimes.

Anyhow, the bo-bardment knocked the confidence out of the respected Mister Meadows, and after Kopf's homer in the next chapter and a walk to Southworth, he was yanked. Oh sure the Braves got revenge for everything that happened in the opener of 1921.

Hubbell, who succeeded, was discovered for the additional run in the eighth, when Boeckel and Ford stuck a single and a double together. Fillingim, once he got warmed up properly, was as safe as a good swimmer on the Sahara Desert until the ninth. A couple of hits put the tieing runs aboard for long Cy Williams, but he was unfortunately called out on strikes, and the Braves went back to the clubhouses more contented and unperturbed than they have been since into campaign was inaugurated.

BRAVES MADE BLOWS COUNT.

Tony Boeckel, who bit a couple with all his old and time ferocity, featured the ultimate round, by making a one-hand stab of a high foul from pinch hitter Lee's bat. The ball was close to the stand, and Tony took his eye off it, meaning the ball, for a flash. When he looked up again, he was out of plumb or something. But he squirmed around, and finally lunged out and speared the sphere.

Tony was coming up with tough breaks all afternoon, and he started off in a manner that augurs a highly successful year for him. There should be all the Phils needed of that opener. Cruise got hitting, knocking off the first run with a warm one that he left. Ford did likewise, but slashed out a fearful liner, but Le Bourveau managed to jump and get that ball. Walks and a swing by the old confidence that had him leading the league last year, and that ought to be a whole lot.

Ford, Holke and everybody else acted as if they meant it up there at the dish, and though the Phils got a hit them, the Braves made the blows count, which is what tells, no matter how you look at it. It was a cold day for baseball, and the athletes had been resting up since Sun day, and were all over the pastime with plenty of vigor, and made up for the weather for the gang that was evidently enough to gamble with the doctors and sit in the cold stands swept by the wintry breezes.

'FRISCO VOTES BOSTON A "WHALE OF A CITY" FOR GIFT OF FISH

A PAIR O' ROSES! If you like 18-karat acting go and see Gertrude Vanderbilt, the irrepressible, in "The Gold Diggers," the amusing play current at the Tremont Theatre. Miss Vanderbilt was caught in a characteristic pose.

A PORTRAIT STUDY! It's not often the camera man catches Lynn Fontanne in such a pensive mood as this. She's in "Dulcy" and 'Dulcy' holds forth at the Hollis. A charming star, a bright play, snappily acted. What could be fairer?

A LITTLE GREEN! Among the bright features on the vaudeville bill coming to Shubert's Majestic Theatre Monday is Jane Green and her clever act. A banner program is offered by the vaudevillians.

SONGFUL! These youths, members of the Faulist Choir, are considered the best boy singers in the world. They will appear at the Boston Opera House on Sunday, April 30. A brilliant program will be given.

A QUEEN FOR A WEEK! Virginia Llamas, who was picked to rule the Philippines during carnival week—replete with festivals and gayety. (International News Reel.)

SHE DANCES, SHE DO!' Miss Doris Creamer, who will twinkle her toes at the American Legion Minstrels at Calais, Me., on April 26 and 27. We thought Maine grew potatoes, not peaches.

DON'T BALK at Sending in Knicker Pictures! Here is Alys Hird of No. 39 Huntington ave., Boston, today's winner of the $5 award as a pretty Knickerbocker Girl. Send 'em in to the Pictorial Editor.

GEORGE'S BEST CATCH! But then George O'Neil of the Boston Braves was always a good catcher. Mrs. O'Neil takes great delight in rooting for hubby at the games. She was an interested spectator at the Braves-Philly game Friday. (International News Reel.)

FOLLOW THE FOLLIES for Frivolity and Fun! Corn D'Orsay, shown here in a gorgeous creation, is as clever as she is pretty. If you're skeptical go see her in the "Greenwich Follies" at the Shubert.

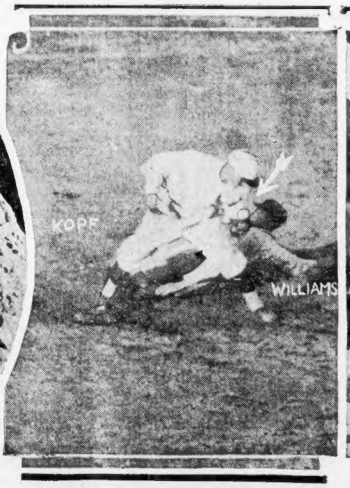
POESEY! Mrs. Grace Hazard Conkling, professor of English at Smith College, whose prize poem "Variations on a Theme," has won the approval of the sternest critics. She was this year's winner of the "Blindman" award of $250 offered yearly by the Poetry Society of Charleston, S. C. (Keystone.)

MAKING IT ON HIGH! Charles Thiel of Washington st., Roslindale, who will give an exhibition on his "unicycle," a freak machine, at the Boston American's bicycle run, Sunday, April 30.

MISS CLARA SHEAR, Boston soprano of note, who will sing at a concert in aid of the Jewish War Relief Fund Sunday afternoon at the Broadway Theatre, Everett.

SACRED CODFISH! James Rolph, Jr. (right), Mayor of San Francisco, receiving 1,000 pounds of fish sent to the West Coast by Mayor Curley to be distributed with the compliments of the City of Boston.

CUPID PLAYS WILL O' THE WISP! Love is the bitterest and most complex experience of life Mme. Mimi Constantineau, former Boston concert singer, has come to believe. She is suing Lewis K. Marr, assistant superintendent of the Pennsylvania railroad, for $150,000 on the charge of breach of promise and non-support. Says they lived as man and wife for ten years.



WHAT "BIG BERTHA" SAW! Only once in a while does a cameraman catch a base ball action picture like this. It shows Williams of the Phillies stealing second in the sixth. Note ball in Kopf's (covering second) hand and position of their feet.

OUT TO COLLECT EVIDENCE INSTEAD OF CITY FUNDS! Frank S. Deland, former city collector, as he appears in his new [illegible] of assistant district attorney of Suffolk County. Law breakers won't find him as angelic looking as he appears here. He was buried [illegible] the usual amount of flowers.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Three Weddings Today Occupy Interest of Smart Set

By BETTY ALDEN

WEDDING "fans" among the smart set are sure to find today a busy one, for no less than three brides have selected this as their wedding day.

There is considerable interest in the ceremonial which will make Miss Eleanor Brewer, daughter of the Edward Winsor Brewers, Mrs. James Lewis Prescott, the marriage to be solemnized at 8 o'clock tonight in the Unitarian Church on Eliot street, Jamaica Plain.

Miss Brewer, who belongs to the coterie of girls making their debut in 1919, has selected Mary Brewster of Marlboro street as maid of honor. The group of bridesmaids includes the Misses Helen Mann, Elisabeth Bowditch, Margaret Stevens, Elizabeth Robinson, Katherine Billings and Olive Prescott, the latter a sister of the bridegroom.

The bridegroom who comes from Passaic, New Jersey, will have his brother, Robert Prescott, as best man, while three other brothers, Messrs. Ralph, Charles and Amos Prescott, are of the ushers, the latter including also Willet Morrill, Edmund McLean, Fred Dunn and Edward Winsor Brewer, Jr., brother of the bride.

The Rev. James A. Fairley will officiate at the ceremony, which is to be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents on Lamartine street. Mr. Prescott will take his bride to live in Passaic, where they will be at home at No. 35 Temple street after the first of August.

SCHEDULED to take place this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the First Parish Church of Brookline is the marriage of Miss Katherine Walker to Lindsay Bradford of New York.

The bride, who made her debut a few years ago, and was elected of the Sewing Circle of her year, will have her sister, Miss Evelyn Walker—who will be presented next Winter—as maid of honor. The group of bridesmaids include the Misses Helen James and Mary Bradford of New York, Elizabeth Taylor of Little Rock, Ark.; Miss Emily Kimbrough of Buffalo, Miss Eleanor Donnelly of Chicago and Miss Nancy Richmond of Providence.

The bridegroom's brother, Lieutenant-Commander Gerard Bradford, will be the best man, while of the young men who will escort the guests to their places will be Messrs. George G. Jones of Cambridge, Amos Morrill, Frederick B. Jennings, Jr., George E. Stevens, Augustus Downing, Jr., Stuart Johnson, all of New York; Clement M. Gile and Richmond Walker of Brookline.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents on Upland road will follow the ceremony, at which the Rev. Abbott Peterson will officiate.

The wedding journey of the couple will take them to White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, which seems to be one of society's favorite honeymoon spots. At the same resort are Mr. and Mrs. William Davies Sohier, Jr. (Elaine Denegre), who have arrived there after constant traveling about since their marriage, taking place on the North Shore nearly a year ago.

The engagement of Miss Walker to young Bradford, a Yale '14 man, was announced in January, when it created not a little interest. The bride, who attended Miss Winsor's School, is a graduate of Bryn Mawr.

BECAUSE of mourning in the family, the wedding of Miss Lucia Beebe and Albert Wright Rockwood, which takes place at 4:30 this afternoon in Emmanuel Church, is to be a very quiet one, indeed.

Miss Beebe, who came out a few years ago, is the daughter of the Junius Beebes of Bay State road and Wakefield. During the past season she and her family have been traveling about considerably, so that their Boston friends have not seen a great deal of them.

The engagement of the bride to Mr. Rockwood, whose father is George W. Rockwood, was one of the most important of those announced during the mid-Winter. Practically all the branches of the Beebe family have country homes in Wakefield, where they are counted among the show places of that vicinity.

The reception at the Beebe residence on Bay State road will be for the family connection only.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

THE Misses Katherine and Louisa Loring have concluded their visit to the Capital and have returned to Boston. During their stay in Washington they were the guests of the Serbian Minister and Mme. Grouitch at the legation.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Acre Bush (Mary D. Nichols) of Gloucester street, who are of the Boston colony at White Sluphur Springs, were recently among those taking tea at the Casino. The latter is one of the popular gathering places for society folk, especially during the afternoon hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Norris Milliken of No. 56 Fenway have gone over for a few days' visit in New York, where they are stopping at the Hotel Lorraine.

Mr. and Mrs. William Davies Sohier, Jr. (Elaine Denegre), of Boston, have arrived at the Greenbrier Hotel in White Sulphur Springs. These young people, whose marriage last June was one of the most brilliant ceremonials of the North Shore season, spent the early Winter at the New Orleans home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Denegre, the latter occupying their Washington home for the season. The latter part of the cold months Mr. and Mrs. Sohier spent at Palm Beach.

"Semenoff's men tied captives together—Shot and threw them into the furnace. Astounding evidence of brutality on the part of General Semenoff, Cossack leader—The General now under arrest in New York—Read about him in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser.—Advt.

JEWISH RELIEF DRIVE OPENS TOMORROW

After weeks of preparation and the formation of committees on a more extensive scale than has ever before been known in the history of Greater Boston Jewry, the appeal for the Jewish war sufferers will begin tomorrow with two important gatherings.

The first will be a conference of the 3,500 men and women who form the district appeal committee, to be held in Symphony Hall at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and the second will be a dinner of the 350 workers who compose the trades division, at the Elysium Club.

With workers for every ten givers, with complete ward organizations established, with twenty-four individual ward headquarters, and each ward conducting its campaign as though it were a separate city, no Jewish man or woman will be missed in the solicitation. This work is under the personal active direction of Felix Vorenberg, chairman of the district appeal, who sees in it the first concrete effort ever undertaken to absolutely solidify the city's Jewry. Headquarters are at No. 313 Washington street.

Says Whip Your Children With a Ruler and They'll Grow Up to Be Straight

The school days are the happiest days of life. Most of the wildest boys we knew in school have got married since and have been tamed.

A lot of us who started in life with nothing have managed to hang on to it.

While the average scholar studied many things, his favorite course was recess.

One big merchant today was very good in arithmetic. In fact, he was so expert that he could add a column of figures and get a different answer every time.

But in all his business deals he's been straight. He got this way from being whipped so often with a ruler.

The teachers all liked him. They liked him so well that he usually stayed two or three terms in one grade.

He and the principal were great friends, that is, he used to spend most of his time in the principal's office.

This is the reason he doesn't mind standing in the street cars. He was practically brought up on a strap.

But he was the most retiring boy in the class, always sleeping.

He liked to sleep so well that the teachers thought he was going to be a night watchman.

He was very studious but no matter how hard he pursued his studies he never caught up with them.

One guy who used to bring a sandwich to school for his noon meal now owns a chain of quick lunch rooms. School did a lot for him, it taught him how to eat in a hurry.

Another fellow who used to be the biggest dumbbell in the class now owns a whole gymnasium.

REGULAR LINES OF MERCHANDISE

Our Great Basement carries complete stocks of staple merchandise throughout the entire year. No matter what you may need, you are reasonably sure to find it here, and often times at less than it would cost you elsewhere.

MARILYN MILLER COMES TO THE COLONIAL

"Sally," the big musical comedy in which Ziegfeld placed Marilyn Miller, Leon Errol, Walter Catlit and a lot of favorites, comes to the Colonial Monday after its marvelous run at the New Amsterdam, New York. In this case there are no apologies for missing stars. The entire cast comes to Boston.

That very remarkable burlesque show "Follies of the Day," which has been breaking all Burlesque records around the country this season, comes back to the Gayety for a week. Aside from the stock companies changes and the continuing attractions, this represents the theatrical bill of fair for the coming week.

Mary Young, Juliet Day Stay Long at Arlington

"We Girls," with Mary Young and Juliet Day in the principal roles, runs still another week at the Arlington. This is by far the most successful engagement that theatre has enjoyed for two seasons and it is due entirely to the popularity of the two stars in this city. And of course there is no doubt that the Hattons have written a farce which for unusual situations, bright lines and general hilarity won't be surpassed this year.

Let us hope that the Craigs, John and Mary, will find a way to return to the Arlington, their home for so many years. There is a chance to put that theatre over big and John Craig may be the man to do it.

Willard Mack Is Some Prestigiator

That curious genius Willard Mack is responsible for "Smooth as Silk." There isn't anybody writing plays, except perhaps George Cohan, who can write as crisp dialogue in the American vernacular as Willard Mack. And even Cohan cannot equal him for thrilling and melo dramatic situations. You can poke lots of holes in a Mack situation—afterwards. But at the time he gets you. Now take the big scene in "Smooth as Silk." Bill Courtenay, as "Silk," is robbing a house, seeking important papers hidden in a safe. He is caught in the act by the owner of the house who is a bigger rougue than he is. There is a big scene. Finally he is told the papers are not in the safe anyway.

"I know it," said Bill. "They were in that wall safe over there and I came here and got them last night."

After the curtain has fallen you get thinking about it and say, "What the duce did he go back for if he had already secured what he went after the night before."

But—don't you think of it until after the curtain has fallen. That's Willard Mack.

Miss Fontanne Once Was a Bookkeeper

Is there any royal road to success in any of the professions? Apparently not. Certainly there is not in the theatrical profession. One watching Lynn Fontanne in "Dulcy" at the Hollis would never think that young woman ever had a hard or trying time of it to get on in the theatre. And yet she once had to keep books and do office work—or make a try at it—as she explains in her animated manner—in order to make enough money to live.

This fact came out the other afternoon during the course of some advice the actress was giving a girl who had called to find out what steps she would have to take in order to gain a footing on the stage. Miss Fontanne was telling her visitor to take anything that was offered, to go on as an "extra" in the ensemble, to become the understudy for a small part, to do anything in the beginning.

"But one must eat and pay room rent," said the young woman.

"Well, but you can manage to keep books or do office work during the day," replied Miss Fontanne, "and that will help out. You shouldn't mind that."

There was a quizzical glance from the questioner and then she asked:

"But you never did that, Miss Fontanne?"

"Indeed I did; I had to," came the answer. "I was going to be an actress and I had to make my way. The less help I had from kind friends was going to be better for me in the long run. At night I walked on with Beerbohm Tree, or Henry Irving, or Lewis Waller, and in the daytime I worked keeping books."

Marilyn Likes Her New Voice

"If there is one thing I am proud of, says Marilyn Miller, who plays the title role in Ziegfeld's big production of "Sally," opening Monday night at the Colonial, "it is my new voice.

"It is the latest thing I have and it took a lot of time, trouble and hard work to acquire it."

Marilyn Miller, until she blossomed forth as the prima donna of this most successful musical comedy two years ago, was known to fame only as a premiere dancer and no one ever thought of her possessing a singing voice, in addition to her other accomplishments.

She not only astonished her friends but the critics as well on the opening night of "Sally," at the New Amsterdam Theatre in New York, when she burst into song and they all united in declaring that Marilyn could "warble" quite as well as she could dance.

About a year previous Miss Miller had decided to take up the cultivation of her voice, studying with one of the best teachers in the metropolis, and studied hard, taking two lessons a day, so that when Ziegfeld offered her the name part in "Sally" she was quite prepared to accept it.

Shuberts Offer New Kind of Vaudeville

The Shuberts are planning to run vaudeville at the Majestic all Summer, but they have changed their policy around to suit hot weather. Thus the vaudeville acts will appear during the progress of the musical comedy which has hitherto been closing the show. The first showing of this sort of entertainment occurs Monday when "The Midnight Rounders, retained for a second week, will have several remarkable vaudeville acts incorporated.

The Shuberts have a number of so-called "Cameo Revues" which will be brought to the Majestic in succeeding weeks.

Miss Howland Shrinks From Publicity

Few actresses, if any, have a larger legion of admirers than Jobyna Howland, whom David Belasco presented in "The Gold Diggers" at the Tremont Theatre Easter Monday night, April 17, and yet away from the stage she is, perhaps, one of the least known to the public at large.

The theatre is the centre of Miss Howland's happiness, for her whole heart and soul are wrapped up in her work. She is never so contented as when acting, for no matter how long she may play a role it never becomes tiresome or monotonous and she approaches each performance with the same enthusiasm that marks her first appearance in a part. Then again, she is never quite satisfied with her portrayal of a character and is always striving to find some way in which she may improve it.

On the afternoons when she has no matinee, Miss Howland always attends other plays or concerts and is quick to express her appreciation of the things that please her. Outside of this she enjoys very little of other diversions and, therefore, but rarely seen at any public affairs.

"Last Waltz" Star Talks to Girl Singers

Eleanor Painter, who has sung in grand opera in Germany and France, and who is the finest light opera singer on the musical stage today, is of the opinion that greater opportunities await American singers in this country. It is her opinion that the chaotic condition abroad brought about by the war has resulted in the greatest influx on the American stage for our American singers.

Miss Painter feels that some of the best teachers in the world are found right here in America. She did not go abroad to study because she chose to, but because she felt that there were not competent and excellent teachers here, but, because, before the war, conditions abroad were more conducive to rapid advancement. Her case was simply one of hundreds of others.

If the young American singers were given encouragement here, there would be no reason for them to leave the country, according to Miss Painter. She says that the greatest advantage abroad was that young singers were given an opportunity, their imperfections were tolerated in the hope that they might develop into great artists. While in America the public demands that a singer be almost perfect, must already have achieved great success. That is why, before the war, Europe was full of American singers who were fine artists, but who could not obtain engagements at home.

Show Autograph in Anderson's Collection

In his collection of autographs of noted men, John Murray Anderson, who devised and staged the "Greenwich Village Follie" now at the Shubert Theatre, has one from George Bernard Shaw.

While studying at Lucerne in Switzerland, Mr. Anderson wrote Shaw and asked him for his autograph and received this characteristic reply:

"So young and already collecting autographs! Young man, you will come to a bad end." G. Bernard Shaw.

Mr. Anderson feels the Shaw prophesy has not yet come to pass.

BOSTON THEATRE

Elaine Hammerstein and Charlie Chaplin are both on the bill at the Boston Theatre next week. Miss Hammerstein will be seen in "Reckless Youth," adapted from a story by Cosmo Hamilton, one of the most popular authors of current fiction. Chaplin will be seen in his latest comedy.

SALLY AT COLONIAL MONDAY

The long-awaited coming of the record-breaking musical comedy, "Sally," will be realized when the Ziegfeld production intact and with the New York cast unchanged will begin on Monday night, under promising conditions, its engagement at the Colonial Theatre.

"Sally" is the joint production of Guy Bolton, who furnished the book, the foundation on which it has been builded, the music is by Jerome Kern, who has had many successful scores to his credit, the lyrics are by Clifford Grey, additional music she has been contributed by Victor Herbert in the shape of a big ballet number, the scenes are by Joseph Urban, it has been staged by Edward Royce, all under the direct supervision of Mr. Ziegfeld himself.

The complete cast in addition to the two stars, Marilyn Miller, and Leon Errol, includes Walter Catlett, Irving Fisher, Dolores, Stanley Ridges, Frank Kingdon, Geneva Mitchell, A. P. James, Phil Riley, J. Rabiroff and John D. Backer. It would not be a Ziegfeld production unless bejeweled with beautiful young women and "Sally" is no exception to the rule.

DE CANE TESTIMONIAL

A heavy sale of seats is expected for the testimonial for Lawrence De Cane, which will be held at Waldron's Casino on Sunday evening, April 30.

Lawrence De Cane is one of the most popular theatrical men in New England and hundreds of his friends, representing all branches of the profession, will come to the testimonial from all parts of the country. Many noted entertainers have volunteered their services and the program will contain a long list of vaudeville stars. In addition to the vaudeville features there will be an excellent program of attractive photoplay features.

FRED McISAAC says

MARY YOUNG and JULIET DAY, in "We Girls," begin the fourth and last week at the Arlington in the brilliant Hatton comedy. It's something you would enjoy.

GREENWICH VILLAGE FOLLIES announce the last week of a really wonderful engagement at the Shubert. It's a big, fast, clean show.

"GOLD DIGGERS," the clever Belasco farce dealing with chorus girls off the stage, begins a second week at the Tremont, starting Monday.

"DULCY," the smart comedy in which Lynn Fontanne is starring, starts another week at the Hollis. The success of this piece here is a compliment to Boston's intelligence.

WILLIAM COURTENAY, in "Smooth as Silk," a swiftly-moving drama of a lot of good-natured crooks, begins a second week at Selwyn.

ELEANOR PAINTER, by all odds the greatest singer in light opera, commences a second week at the Wilbur in the melodious Viennese operetta, "Last Waltz."

"ORPHANS OF THE STORM," Griffith's masterpiece, will be held over a second week at the Park Theatre. It must not be overlooked by any photoplay follower of discrimination.

"MONTE CRISTO," the Fox masterpiece at Tremont Temple, begins another week of its extraordinary run.

SMILIN' THRO COMING TO PARK

Norma Talmadge's production, "Smilin' Through," which will be the First National attraction at the Park Theatre beginning Monday, May 1, is said to be the most costly, elaborate and artistic photoplay yet made by that star.

New York, Long Island and California furnished backgrounds for the filming of Allen Landon Martin's famous play, in which Jane Cowl appeared on the speaking stage.

In the East, Norma used two great studios, one of which contained a day set and the other a night set, the company frequently working at fourteen-hour stretches under the direction of Sidney Franklin.

GERARD BIG SHOW AT GAYETY

Surprises follow each other in rapid succession in Barney Gerard's latest edition of "Follies of the Day," the $250,000 burlesque production that will be presented this week at the Gayety Theatre.

"Follies of the Day" is a typical Follies show and it stands in undisputed place as the most elaborate and altogether entertaining of all this season's burlesque creations. Among the burlesquers of the country it was selected as the only show of its type to be played on Broadway, New York city, this Summer.

BIG BILL AT LOEW'S NEW THEATRE

Another bill of extraordinary proportions is the announcement by the Loew's State Theatre management for the coming week at its palatial playhouse on Massachusetts avenue. The principal feature of the program will be a brilliant romantic melodrama, featuring Betty Compson in "The Green Temptation," a story, the locale of which finds its setting in the Apache dens of the underworld of Paris and in the gilded cabarets of the ultra-fashionable. Miss Compson, who scores heavily in this remarkable picture, proves herself a star of many well-developed talents. She portrays the versatile role of a woman whose life undergoes two big, vital transitions. She has three names in the picture, and in reality plays three different characterizations. First, she is the typical French Apache, who loves the "game" and is one of the most notorious female crooks in Paris; secondly, the theatrical dancer, the idol of the French capital, and then during and after the war the broad-visioned woman, whose complete regeneration has been brought about by the tragedies and horrors of the conflict. The companion picture will be Herbert Rawlinson in "The Man Under Cover," a remarkable picture of real life adapted from a story by Louis Victor Eytinge, "The Man Who Knows."

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS

Keen anticipation is being manifested by the many patrons of the Somerville Theatre in the forthcoming production by the Somerville Players of Sam H. Harris' musical production, "Honey Girl," which takes place the coming week. The story of "Honey Girl" is by Edward Clarke, who has taken Henry Blossom's world renowned play, "Checkers," and woven it into a compact melange of light, color, music and dancing with many beautiful and radiant costumed girls

THIRD OF A CENTURY KEITH'S

Celebration of the "Third of a Centurry Jubilee" of B. F. Keith vaudeville which begins in every Keith house in the country next Monday will be marked here by a striking all-star bill headed by Julian Eltinge, fittingly enough a Boston boy who has become world famous through the variety stage.

Eltinge, a Boston favorite since the days when he graced the amateur productions of the Bankers, and the Cadets, brings new songs, gorgeous new gowns and his old admired personality.

The Cansinos, Eduardo and Elsia, foremost Spanish dancers, are the extra features of this unusually fine bill. They will be seen in a number of folk and classic steps from their native land, as well as in a cycle of popular American dances.

Rome and Gaut, inimitable funsters, whose very physical forms are provocative of laughter, will appear in their unique specialty, "When Extremes Meet."

NEW CHAPLIN AT LOEW'S ORPHEUM

"Pay Day" Ranks With Best Productions Star Comedian Has Ever Offered

Charles Chaplin's latest comedy release, "Pay Day," which is being distributed as a First National attraction will be shown at Loew's Orpheum Theatre the entire coming week. Advance notices tend to the belief that this vehicle will rank among the best productions the star comedian has ever offered. Edna Purviance, the star's brother Sydney, who but so long ago blossomed out as a star himself; Mack Swain, who was with Chaplin in "The Idle Class" Phyliss Allen, Henry Bergman, Loyal Underwood, John Rand and Allen Garcia ald the star's efforts. Chaplin has transported himself to an atmosphere of toil and horny-handed laborers for novelty situation and new stunts centering around the arrival of the weekly pay envelope. He receives his, promptly spends it and returns home to sing alto to the wife's "O Promise Me," finally plunging into the frigid liquid of a well-filled bathtub to escape her. In addition to starring in the picture Chaplin holds the dual role of director and author, for "Pay Day" is an original story by him which he directed.

Some Villain Is Robert McKim

Hardly a motion picture fan in all the world but knows Robert M. McKim, said by many to be the screen's most polished villain. Mr. McKim has a smile that is most sardonic, yet underneath that same sinister plausibility he has qualities that make him a handy man about the house. McKim's stage urbanity is wonderfully displayed in his interpretation of the villainous de Villefort in William Fox's super-special "Monte Cristo," which is now showing at the Tremont Temple. During the filming of the picture Mr. McKim found a rip in his satin coat, and he handed it to the wardrobe department to have it repaired. "I'll have to do it by hand," explained the head needle woman, "our sewing machines are out of order."

"Well, they're Singer's. Let's see what I can do with them," answered the villain. Then, to the amazement of half a dozen women in the department, he set to work and with a few applications of the screw driver in the right place, soon had the machine in good running order. Later in the day Mr. McKim confessed that he had been at one time a sewing machine agent, which necessitated his becoming familiar with every part of a machine.

Take a Cook's Tour 'With Green Temptation'

The various locales in "The Green Temptation," Betty Compson's Paramount picture, directed by William D. Taylor, and which will be shown at Loew's State Theatre the entire coming week, take the spectator on a veritable Cook's tour, giving him intimate views of some of the most interesting places in the Old World as well as the new. In the brief time required to run six reels one gets in this picture a cross section of life that it is not the tourist's good fortune to see even after spending hundreds of dollars on railway and steamship transportation. Opening with a scene on the Rue Macabre in Paris, showing "The Petite Circle" in action, the picture speeds through the haunts of the Apaches in the old Roman Catacombs, to the dressing room of the most complete ballet dansseuse in the "Theatre de la Capitale," to one of the old mansions of Paris of the grand period of architecture during imperial rule; into the torn and battered French villages behind the battle lines; and thence across the sea to one of New York's fashionable tea rooms and the Long Island home of the nouveau riche. Into such a picturesque background, Monte M. Katterjohn and Julia Crawford Ivees, the scenarists, have woven Constance Lindsay Skinner's original story of forgiveness, romance and regeneration, published under the title, "The Noose."

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Messrs. Shubert announce the inauguration the coming week of their Summer policy of vaudeville at the Majestic. Typical of this policy is their New York Winter Garden success review, "Midnight Rounders," which has scored such a pronounced success this past week.

Appearing in the revue scenes, constantly re-appearing in different roles and introducing during the course of the revue their vaudeville specialties, are such well-known musical comedy and vaudeville stars as Jane Green and Jimmy Hyler, Harry Hines, Sam Hearn, Helen Eley, Irving O'Day, Alice Ridnor, Jean Carroll, Jack Keller, Davey White, Lillian Washburn, Inez Buchanan. Outstanding features are the famous Cleveland Bronner Ballet and a large chorus of Broadway beauties.

Appearing in the two big Sunday concerts at 2 and 8 p. m. tomorrow are Jane Green and Jimmy Hyler, Sam Hearn, Harry Hines, Helen Eley, Jack Keller, Charles Wheeler, Irving O'Day, Inez Buchanan, Lillian Washburn, Chick Story Trio Seven Jazzy Shifers, Shubert Weekly News, etc.

"CHOCOLATE SOLDIER"

The Messrs. Shubert's revival of "The Chocolate Soldier," the Oscar Straus opera bouffe, based on Bernard Shaw's famous comedy, "Arms and the Man," will be the attraction at the Shubert Theatre beginning Monday, May 1, with Donald Brian and Virginia O'Brien heading a cast of well-known operatic artists.

When Sugar Was a Luxury

DURING the Middle Ages sugar was a rare and precious substance only for medical use or for the very rich. In colonial days it was a luxury, and became a staple article only with the growth of the custom of drinking tea and coffee.

FINANCE and BUSINESS

—By B. C. Forbes—

J. P. Morgan has astonished a good many people by accepting the European invitation to join the international committee to consider the feasibility of floating a foreign loan or loans to help Germany to meet her financial obligations to the Allies. Mr. Morgan rarely shoulders such tasks personally. Henry P. Davison formerly filled such roles. Thomas W. Lamont usually does now. At the present, however, Mr. Lamont is in Europe wrestling with the preparations, in conjunction with the British and French interests, of a solution of the Mexican foreign debt problem.

The figure Mr. Morgan cuts will be watched with intense interest, as a great many people seriously doubt whether he has inherited any of the Napoleonic capabilities of his father.

I'm probably wrong, because so many who ought to be high authorities think differently. But if I were running a corporation that figured on needing financing within the next twelve months, I would shout out the securities now. The time to sell is when others want to buy. There is a very good market for new security offerings at present. A good many prospective borrowers are holding off on the theory that money will become much cheaper later in the year and that, consequently, it will be possible to raise capital on distinctly easier terms. This reasoning may prove correct.

Then again, the improvement in business may become pronounced enough to absorb the largest quantities of money and credit, thereby preventing money from becoming very much cheaper, while the appetite for new issues may not be quite as keen six months or a year from now as it is today. Five million or ten million of dollars actually raised would seem preferable to merely the prospect of raising a million of ten millions.

* * *

The refusal of the United States government to participate officially in the Genoa conference is supported by leading American financiers. They reasoned that politics would predominate over economics. Events are proving that they were right. By and by, however, American financiers will favor sitting down at the European council table—when they feel certain that their views and recommendations will predominate. That time promises to be not so very far off.

* * *

I ran across Thomas E. Wilson this week, and immediately tried to "pump" him about the Armour-Wilson-Cudahy merger talk. "I'd rather have your views on the report than give you mine," Mr. Wilson countered, smiling.

In view of the very severe losses which all the packers have sustained during the last twelve months, it would not be astonishing should efforts be made to bring about some such combination as the one under discussion.

"Needs must when the devil drives." Necessity has often proved a wonderful matchmaker. It may possibly prove so in this instance. Certainly an organization having J. Ogden Armour at its head to guide, particularly, its financial destinies, and Thomas E. Wilson as its president to direct its business operations, would have a pretty eminently efficient pair at its helm. Mr. Armour has been described as "the ablest packer among the packers."

Stocks Strong in Both Markets

TRADING BRISK IN A BROAD FIELD

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

The New York market was strong from start to finish, gains at the close ranging as high as six points. Prices were a little below the high level at the end. There was profit taking late in the session. While the market was not as active as a week ago, when a Saturday record was established, it was a big week-end for the exchange. Trading was broad and included many issues which are usually inactive. Most of the speculative leaders had a narrow range. Big gains were mostly by obscure stocks.

Realization selling was reflected by railway shares, which were irregular. Steels ruled higher as was the case with oils. Gains were made by most of the active motors, but this did not apply to Studebaker. It was the auto leader and closed with a small loss. More than a score of issues sold at new highs for this year or last. High records were reached by Coca Cola, Columbia Gas and Mack Trucks. The last named issue is newly listed. It advanced 6¼ to 49.

Strongest issues included Chicago & Eastern Illinois, American Express, American Zinc, Illinois Central preferred, Coca Cola, Lackawanna Steel, Midvale, Pullman, North American Co., Texas & Pacific and Republic Steel. They were up from one to more than two points. International Paper was off one point and United Fruit two. Most declines were fractional.

U. S. Steel ranged from a gain of ⅝ to a trifle less closing at 99¾, off ⅛. Studebaker was down 1¼ at 123¾ at the end. It sold as high as 124¾. Motion Picture Shares switched with 1¼ gain at 19¾. Chandler was up ¼ at 11¼. New Haven sold as high as 25¼, closing at the top. Pullman was up 2 at 122¾.

The 3½ per cent. call rate held over until Wednesday. Tuesday no change was made with margin at

Boston Market Was Strong and Active

The Boston market was strong throughout the morning and active for a Saturday session. Prices were up at the opening in a three to one ratio. Some issues increased their gains later, but the price movement was not wide. Trading lacked an outstanding feature. New England public utilities led in strength. Copper were steady, but had a good undertone. Packing issues did not develop much change, but they attracted more than usual attention. It advanced 1⅜ to a new high for the year. Island Creek was in evidence also, advancing 1¼ to 51. U. S. Smelting gained 1¼ to ¼ a high for 1922. Point or more gains were made by Maine preferred, Boston and Maine A, Maine Central, New Haven and Torrington. On one side Boston and Maine preferred dropped five points. Old Colony receded three on a solitary transaction.

The local Curb market was active and leaders were Mutual, Three Metals, Eureka, Boston & Montana and Baghad. Among gains were Boston Ely 3 cents at 76 cents, Mutual 1 cent at 39 cents, and United Verde Extension 1 at 28¾. Losses included Eureka 1 cent at 29 cents, Boston & Montana 2 cents at 18 cents, and Three Metals 1 cent at 76 cents. Baghad was unchanged at 24 cents.

Motor Shares Had an Active Start

By W. S. COUSINS.

New Haven opened at 24¾ and sold up to 24⅝. New York Central advanced ¾ to 92 and Northwestern was up ¾ at 76¾.

HOW RANGE OF RADIO CAN BE WIDENED

By A. B. HOAG

What is the range of my set?

This question, more than any other, appears continually in letters to be answered in the question box.

As a matter of cold fact, there is no answer, although it is easy enough to give a fair guess as to what stations can be heard and can not in a particular situation with a particular set. The detector, tuning coil, and auxiliary apparatus constitute only one of a great many factors that influence the distance at which a station may be heard.

Most dealers and manufacturers estimate twenty-five miles as the ordinary range of a crystal detector set under average conditions. Yet crystal detectors have picked up stations one hundred and even two hundred miles distant. They have also refused to work five miles from the sending station.

INCREASE OF RANGE.

What are some of the things that will increase the range of a receiving set?

A good aerial is one of the best assurances of a good range. It should be at least sixty feet long for good work, and the longer it is the better, up to around a hundred and fifty feet. It should be as high above the ground as possible, and well-insulated. Any large amount of iron or steel near it will detract from its effectiveness.

Even this does not tell the whole story about the aerial, as even the nature of the near-by terrain will affect, favorably or unfavorably, the effectiveness of the aerial.

In vacuum tube sets, the condition of the two batteries have an important bearing on the range of the set. Using less than the full voltage on the filament or the plate will lower the efficiency of the set.

The crystal of a crystal detector set is an important factor. It is generally pays to buy a tested crystal, and then see that no one touches it with uncovered fingers. Some spots on the crystal are more sensitive than others, and it is well to move the catwhisker or point about until a sensitive spot is found.

MUST STUDY THEORY.

The skill of the operator must be taken into account. A set with three or four controls is confusing to the beginner, and reasonably so. He must learn by theory what the set needs experience and an understanding of the underlying principles. If he wishes to get the most out of any set, both in enjoyment and in actual result, do not despise a study of the theory. It will actually increase the range of your set.

Various amateur operators continue to insist pugnaciously that an amplifier hitched onto a crystal detector set will increase the range of the set. So far as I know, this has never been conclusively proved. It is not, however, an efficient method. Instead of an amplifier, use a simple vacuum tube detector and lay aside the crystal.

Finally there are a number of factors that are beyond the control of the owner of a receiving set. The power used by the sending station, the "penetrability" of the atmosphere to the radio waves, iron deposits in the earth, and a myriad of other things affect the range of a receiving set. The usefulness of the Springfield station is lessened, for instance, because, it is believed, the iron deposits in the hills to the east absorb the radiated energy.

MESSAGE TO WIFE.

In the face of all these difficulties, radio instruments have reached the astonishing degree of efficiency. Radio telephony is no longer an experiment, but an accepted creation. It is not a toy or a passing fad. Many financiers have understood its greatness, and the millions sunk in its development were not intended for the promotion of evanescent dream.

One of the most novel uses of radio broadcasting puzzled the dexterity listening in to the Amrad station at Medford Hillside a few evenings past.

In the midst of the program, announcer Trefry gave out the following broadcast:

"I have an announcement to make to Mrs. Gladys Berg, No. 5 Douglas street, Wyoma, Lynn. Carl is working late. Don't be alarmed."

The story is that Carl W. Berg, an installer of radio appliances, was unexpectedly engaged in Medford. Fearing that his wife would be uneasy, he telephoned to Medford Hillside, and asked Trefry to broadcast a message.

Mrs. Berg was listening in, as Carl had expected, and heard the reassuring report. A private message coming to her home alone unexpectedly. "Like lightning from the blue," considerably surprised her, however.

NEW SINGLE SIX PACKARD MADE FOR COMFORT

Conspicuous for Its Beauty, Is Also Economical in Upkeep

Out of the fullness of an experience that embraces both the achievements of the past and the requirements of the present Packard has produced in its new model Single Six, which arrived in Boston this week and which is on exhibition at the Packard showroom, No. 1069 Commonwealth avenue, a car that not only retains all those features that over the past year and a half have made it famous for its economy of operation and maintenance, but adds much that is new.

RARE GRACE OF LINE.

The new Packard Single Six is distinguished by a rare grace of line and fineness of proportion. It is longer, being built in two wheel base lengths, 126 inches and 133 inches. It is also lower.

There are eight different body types, a five-passenger touring, roadster, coupe and sedan, to which are added the following new types: a four-passenger "Sport" model, and a seven-passenger touring car, sedan and limousine.

The new Packard is more perfectly symmetrical. The radiator is higher and broader. The headlights are of a new special Packard design and are all nickel. Fenders are full-crowned. The upholstery of the open model is of heavy, whole-hide leather, and in the enclosed models wonderful selected fabrics. There is ample room in every respect, both for driver and passengers.

All about the new Single Six are those little artist e touches that evidence the forethought of the designer for the convenience of the motorist, and endear it particularly to the woman who drives. The pull-to handles of the doors are covered with upholstery cloth. When folded down, they fit into recesses in the doors. The cowl ventilator is instantly adjustable in three positions. Neatly designed pockets are provided on all doors of the enclosed models.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS.

In addition to the very marked improvement in appearance and beauty of the car as a whole, there have been a great many detail improvements in the whole chassis. The piston stroke is increased to 5 inches which results in a 10 per cent increase in engine efficiency and power. The motor is even quieter if possible, and smoother. Ignition system is still further simplified, and there are many other improvements.

The new single six combines in one car the greatest desired advantages of light-weight, economy of first cost and of maintenance, striking appearance, comfort, safety, a fine and powerful performance together with that enduring quality which only balanced design, selected material and precision of manufacture can procure.

It not only represents a wonderful value as an investment, but is extremely economical, both in operation and upkeep. This car will go up to twenty miles and more to the gallon of gasoline, according to the driver and road conditions, a point of economy which every automobile user will appreciate. It will give 8,000 miles to the gallon of oil and 25,000 miles to a set of tires.

PRICES ABOUT THE SAME.

Prices remain about the same. The 126-inch wheel base, 7-passenger model sells for only $200 more than the 5-passenger. Enclosed cars are reduced in price.

For twenty years now Packard has enjoyed for its products the general approval of the public. Packard never was more enthusiastic in presenting a model to the public than it is right now with this latest and newest Single Six. It not only embodies all of the good qualities of the first model, which has met with wonderful satisfaction on the part of owners, but also many additional features which make it in the words of an enthusiast—not A car but THE car.

HUPMOBILE IN SEVERE TEST OF CLIMBING

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

There are some hills in Boston that are used as standard "demonstrating" hills, but the one called "Snake Hill," leading from Waban Hill road to Waban Hill terrace, just beyond where the Lake street Commonwealth avenue cars stop, is certainly a severe test for any motor, be it four, six, eight or twelve, as the torturous curves necessitate working on the differential all the way up. The corners are sharp and the grades are steep.

Having heard a few remarks about what the Hupmobile would do, the writer and C. E. Jeffrey of the Jeffrey-Nichols Company went out for a ride recently.

TURN CIRCLES ON HIGH.

The first stunt was to turn circles on high gear going up. Commonwealth avenue hill. This was easy. Then we tackled Corey Hill from the Commonwealth avenue side. This was negotiated in high gear with ease, the motor picking up speed on the last grade at the top. Then the car was driven down to this "Snake Hill" and climbed the entire distance on high without a hitch. In the middle of the curves is a test for any motor, and when it was done by a four-cylindered car with a motor 3¼ by 5½, the feat seems almost incredible.

In speaking of this remarkable performance, Mr. Jeffrey said: "We do not figure number of cylinders when we make comparisons. We believe the Hupmobile will compare with any multi-cylinder motor over in performance except extreme speed, and by that I mean over sixty miles an hour. And another vital point to our car is the good line mileage, and we actually get twenty miles to the gallon.

COLD WEATHER CARBURETOR.

"There are features about the Hupmobile which are found only in much larger cars. The bearings in the crankshaft are unusually large and our crank-shaft is balanced when revolving. Our carburetor, with the hood for automobiling, is one of the best cold weather carburetors in the market. We have practically no trouble in starting in zero weather. Our valves are unusually large, which helps in our power."

ASK MR. FIXIT

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have a Model 40-5, eight-cylinder, Oldsmobile. Recently on a long trip, toward the end of the journey, the engine began to miss fire, and has been getting worse the further I go. The trouble. The carburetor (ball and float) seems to be O. K. Likewise the ignition system. Could the trouble lie in the mechanical valve gear? Or could it have anything to do with the clutch engaged or disengaged, or with the gear shift? Please tell me what is causing the trouble, and how it can be remedied. Yours truly, H. C. Mr. Fix-It: Could you tell me from what service station I could buy a new kit for a steering column shift? The knob on is nickel plated and has three arrows on it, pointing to the left, right and back. The knobs are designed to operate the steering column by means of a bolt. It seems the thread is the same as the bolt. Also, about how much would it cost? H. C.

Boston will come into its own when worth rather than birth prevails.—Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald.

Pass the Drug Bill

Addicts Should Be Cared for and Illegal Purveyors of Narcotics Severely Punished

The fight is waxing critical over the drug bill reported by Senator Gardner Pearson's Committee on Public Health.

Who on earth would oppose the beneficent provisions of this bill, we cannot imagine. The bill provides for special treatment of the victims of narcotic drugs. These victims are not criminals, nor did most of them acquire the habit through their own fault. The habit was formed by the administration of the drug by physicians to alleviate intolerable pain. They are simply unfortunate, just as unfortunate as if they were the victims of a contagious disease contracted without their fault.

The bill also provides for more severe penalties for those who sell these deadly drugs. Their fault is clear, and no penalty needed to stamp out this class of criminals can be too severe. We cannot believe that this bill is in danger.

Governor Cox is in favor of it, and everybody who has any knowledge of the situation must be in favor of it. We cannot imagine anyone opposed to it except those who are worse than bootleggers.

Curb Contempt for Color

We Are Losing Respect of the World by the Practice of Lynching

There is a resolution before the Legislature to memorialize Congress in favor of the passage of the so-called Dyer anti-lynching bill, which gives the Federal government jurisdiction in certain parts of the country over situations in which the danger of lynching is involved.

The humanity and justice of granting protection to our negro citizens, and, in fact, assuring constitutional protection of the due process of law to all our citizens, is too plain to need discussion.

The colored population of the world is beginning to come into its own. We heard the other day of the negro regiment from Jamaica which refused at the order of the British to sail for India, there to help the English hold down in their misery and oppression the people of India.

We are making enemies for ourselves beyond our borders and enemies which may become important enemies by our practice of lynching. Perhaps more important than all, we are losing the respect of the thoughtful, just and discriminating people of the world by this practice of lawlessness and brutality.

For Old Age Pensions

Eagles Array Themselves Against Legislators Who Are Opposed to This Progressive Measure

The Fraternal Order of Eagles, one of the leading fraternal bodies in the country, has decided to promote old-age pensions in this State and to do all it can legitimately to defeat the men in the Legislature who are opposed to it.

Old-age pensions lie in the line of progress, because it is a provision demanded by the commonest principle of decency and justice.

The same Big Business influences which are opposing old-age pensions in this State opposed it in England. Lloyd George fought this bill through when he was younger and more democratic than he is today, and now even its leading opponents admit its injustice and would not turn a hand to abolish it.

It has been adopted in all the more progressive countries of the world. It will be adopted in this State in spite of the Associated Industries, the Arkwright Club and other business organizations and tax-sensitive persons of that description.

U. S. Fleet Divided

Do You UNDERSTAND the 5-5-3 Ratio?

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

What is our real situation in regard to the famous "5-5-3 naval agreement"? It is supposed to be that our navy equals FIVE, England's navy equals FIVE, Japan's navy equals THREE. Therefore, SUPPOSEDLY, we are as strong as England, and two-fifths stronger than Japan. But that is NOT the fact, a friend in Devon, Connecticut, points out.

Japan and England are allies, necessarily, for England depends on Japan to do her police work in Asia. That is perfectly natural and all right; the English are intelligent.

England, to begin with, in spite of all Washington agreements, is more than twice as powerful on the sea as we are. Her great commercial fleet, an auxiliary navy, doubles the value of her fighting ships. Apart from that, our navy represents not FIVE, but TWO AND ONE-HALF on our eastern coast, where we face England, and two and one-half on our western coast, where we face Japan. Therefore, we have really two and one-half against England's five, and two and one-half against Japan's three, to say nothing of the great commercial fleets of England and Japan.

It may be said that we could stand odds of this kind, and we could probably. And we really don't expect any attack from our English friends. But they would be in an embarrassing position at best if we had trouble with Japan.

That should be remembered by those that are cutting down the navy even more than the foreigners at Washington ordered it cut.

Low Airplane Rates

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

This is news worth while. There are aeroplane companies in England that charge lower rates than the regular taxicab companies. Sixteen cents a mile is the charge. The earth taxis charge twenty-four cents a mile. In America, of course, they charge more. Every improvement means cheaper service among other things. The flying machine is no exception.

Somebody's Birthday

(Copyright, 1922, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc)

IF this day is the anniversary of your birth it will be difficult to tell you your natural character as you are probably the type of person whose idea of self is already fixed or permanent, whether true or false.

For the majority of people born this day it will be well to try the stage as a profession, for the world will always be a stage to them anyway, and it is always sound economy to make a virtue of what might otherwise be a vice.

Today is favorable for new moves, and undertakings of a scientific order are sure to be successful. Your ensuing year will necessitate close attention to business. There will be much concentration in it, and no long absences should be contemplated.

A child born today will be erratic and nervous, but with a clear, fine mind will go far.

Ex Libris

—By Zoe B. Faber—

"THERE is no middle ground. I am entirely right or else I am entirely wrong." In these words does Henry P. Fry put the case of the Ku Klux Klan before Congress and the people of the United States for serious thinking, investigation and resulting action.

If he is right in his stand that the Ku Klux is an organization which harbors, encourages and gives vent to an unconscionable hatred toward all that is Catholic, Jewish or foreign, then it is more than time that measures were taken against the enormous power of a national organization, wealthy and large, which is a serious menace in the ideals, not to say safety, of America.

If he is wrong, then it can only be said that the multitude of evidence which he personally has presented to vindicate his charges is more erroneous than seems in the least likely.

At any rate, "The Modern Ku Klux Klan" is a book that will hold your interest from start to finish. It is the continuation and elaboration of the exposure which the New York World ran at the instigation of Mr. Fry, and it bears out remarkably many things that were not entirely disclosed at that time.

TOLERANCE WITH US REALLY EQUIVALENT TO INSULT

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

DEMOCRACY changes vastly more than the form of government.

Indeed, seen largely, the political result of democracy is the least significant expression of the really revolutionary influence of democracy.

Duly it brings re-adjustment to all the institutions and relations which society has inherited from its undemocratic past, until they all are transformed in the spirit of the democratic principle of RESPECT FOR THE INDIVIDUAL.

You can readily see (now that, Columbus-like, we have stood the egg on its end and everybody else can also do the trick) that, politically, democracy means self-government.

Dogmatic Statements

But most of us are still terrified by the similar demand of democracy in industry, where also it insists upon the right of self-organization and the responsibility of self-direction.

In Russia they took that for granted. Hence, revolution. In America we are more cautious and conservative, rightly and wisely, about applying democracy to property, its production and distribution.

We have no intention of exchanging suddenly, for a theoretical economic democracy, an industrial system which, though it is plainly a limited feudal aristocracy, at least works fairly well.

However, that is a vast and complex problem to whose solution the next fifty years will, doubtless, bring the sure service of evolution and the swift surgery of revolution.

And this, because you can not stop the working of democracy, once that idea seizes hold of the souls of men.

Not less revolutionary, if silent because spiritual, is the change which the democratic idea brings into the more intimately personal attitudes and relationships.

Consider, for instance, the matter of Tolerance. In an aristocratic order of society, tolerance has been regarded as a virtue, and a questionable virtue at that.

Tolerance with us is really an insult.

Perhaps, it is desirable to explain these dogmatic statements. Suppose you summon before your historic memory, the dread spectre of the Spanish Inquisition. There you have intolerance, glorified as religious loyalty.

Do not stop now to condemn the Inquisitor, but see the situation from his point of view. Right belief, according to churchly authority, was the one means to safety here and salvation hereafter. Therefore, it was the function of the Church to protect mankind against the contagion of heresy and wrong belief.

This official intolerance of unorthodoxy in religion set the standard for general intolerance of all variation from established belief and custom.

Democratic Spirit

Only relatively recently we have emancipated ourselves from the ugly thrall of intolerance in religion. And there are plenty of good and well-meaning folks, even in America, who are proud of having achieved a degree of tolerance.

They think that they flatter you and compliment themselves, if they tolerate you and your opinion, since they could actually still persecute you with at least social exclusion.

But "tolerance" in a democracy is an insult!

What right have YOU to tolerate ME? Who are You that you can extend patronage to Me?

The RIGHT EXCHANGE for the ancient arrogance of intolerance is not the qualified aristocracy of patronage, but the democratic spirit of GLAD ACCEPTANCE AND EAGER EXPECTANCY.

Letter to the Editor

Treaty Ratification

Editor Boston American:

In the Boston Herald of April 3, and in the chain of American newspapers of similar policy, there is a recent concert of action in the attack on our constitutional safeguards in respect to treaty ratification.

In the solicitude of these papers for the special interests of the people they suggest that a twentieth amendment to the Constitution giving the President the right "to make treaties by and with the advice and consent of a majority of the people's Senators present and voting," instead of the present constitutional two-thirds.

This proposal is neither as ingenuous nor novel as it appears. The question of our method of treaty ratification has been intensively studied by Lord Bryce and others. It is, however, the next logical step in the campaign to break down our distinctive American attitude in foreign affairs. With the history of the American Revolution eradicated, with Washington's Farewell Address discredited and dismissed as obsolete, as the Herald and its associated group openly advocate; a two-thirds requirement for treaty ratification reduced to a majority, those who find their inspiration in foreign countries rather than in American traditions will be able to direct the course of foreign affairs as they desire.

It is not merely a coincidence that in the same issue the Herald gives valuable advertising space to the announcement that Premier Lloyd George in the House of Commons will make what is expected to be his greatest speech, to be printed in full in the Herald of the following day.

Is there any other foreign ruler in the world today whose political speeches would be advertised in advance and forced similarly on the American public?

SEEN AND HEARD

By Lambert and Daily

JAMES J. MULLEN, JR., clerk of the Charlestown District Court, is fast becoming a whirlwind speaker. Making three speeches a day is just an ordinary twenty-four hours for the chairman of the speakers' bureau of the American Legion.

LOOKING UP—JOHN J. MALONEY, ex-police officer, was a caller at the Mayor's gate a day or so ago. Mr. Maloney stands 6 feet 7 inches. He was the tallest policeman in Boston before the strike.

Heads of departments who held positions under the Peters administration have done pretty well so far in getting equally as good berths. DISTRICT ATTORNEY THOMAS O'BRIEN was formerly institutions Commissioner; FRANK S. DELAND, assistant district Attorney, was at one time City Collector and City Treasurer; POLICE COMMISSIONER HERBERT A. WILSON was Building Commissioner, and THOMAS F. SULLIVAN was Commissioner of Public Work and is at present Chairman of the Transit Commission.

SUMMER IS COMING—The Park Commission has ordered 25,000 "fig leaves" for use at L street bathing beach.

Two of the oldest employes in point of service at City Hall are JOSEPH O'KANE, former clerk of the old Common Council, and WILLIAM DUNN, of the Public Buildings Department. Mr. O'Kane has seen service for over forty-nine years and Mr. Dunn has just started on his forty-seventh year.

The several thousand graduates of the Massachusetts Nautical Training School, who have sailed Bay State ships into every port in the world, can accept the assurances that their alma mater is not going to be abolished. REPRESENTATIVE GEORGE PEARL WEBSTER, the old Bull Moose leader, declares that not a syllable of popular approval has been expressed in favor of doing away with the School.

No matter what the outcome may be, ATTORNEY GEORGE M. POLAND is given credit for presenting the case against JUSTICE PIERCE in a very capable manner. Poland has defeated nearly every legal objection raised by HERBERT PARKER. His arguments against PARKER have been sustained occasionally by the majority, but more often by the unanimous vote of the Investigation Committee of the Legislature.

Not a handful of votes will be cast against GOVERNOR COX'S veto of the bill to let Dover withdraw from the Metropolitan District. Dover, with its head up, went into the district along with thirty-seven other communities thirty years ago and has shared the enjoyment of a wonderful system of highways, water and public reservations. GOVERNOR COX says the town must not be allowed to shift its share of the burden to the other thirty-seven.

"TEDDY" GLYNN, as every one knows, is always doing someone a favor. Here's a favor that Theodore did for himself the other day, as told by one of his friends. He is very fond of spaghetti. At a restaurant not far in a southerly direction from City Hall, he ordered some. When served it was black. "Teddy" hesitated. The waitress allowed that she liked to see plates clean, then she knew that the patron was satisfied. The young man thought for a moment and said: "I guess not. I think I am doing myself a favor by not eating this particular dish of spaghetti."

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON WAVES OF LIGHT

By Garrett P. Serviss

"In discussions on light you speak of wave-lengths. Which dimension refers to length? Are waves of light comparable to ripples in water caused by throwing in a stone.—R. L. D., New York."

A "WAVE" of light is a convenient fiction which serves to explain observed facts. The present theory is that light-waves are electro-magnetic pulses transmitted through the "ether," which itself is similarly a convenient fiction. It is not likely that these useful fictions seriously mislead us, but rather they give us a means of studying and discussing phenomena which our understanding cannot at present more directly grasp.

We may say, then, that the impulses which produce the effect that we call light are transmitted virtually as if they were very minute waves in an invisible medium—the ether. The ordinary movements of these waves may be explained by analogy with sound waves. They are to be regarded, like sound waves, as consisting of alternate condensations and rarefactions of the medium through which they travel.

Their Length

What is meant by their length is the distance from each centre of condensation to the next. This would correspond with the length of a wave measured from crest to crest in the direction of propagation. The length varies with the kind of color effect produced upon the eye when the wave enters it. A wave of ordinary red light has a length of about 1-39,000th of an inch, and one of violet light a length of about 1-57,000th of an inch.

The lengths of the waves giving intermediate color effects between the red at one end and the violet at the other are intermediate between those mentioned. There are various methods of measuring the lengths of the waves with great exactness. These depend upon the fact that by slight deviations of the light the waves may be made to extinguish one another when they meet in opposite phases, i. e., crest against hollow; or reinforce one another when they meet in the same phase, as crest with crest.

The velocity with which the waves are transmitted is the same no matter whether the waves be relatively longer or shorter, and this velocity has been directly measured, and is known to be very close to 186,300 miles per second. Having these two data, viz.: wave-length and velocity, it is easy to calculate the frequency with which the waves of any particular color enter the eye. Take, for instance, red waves 1,39,000th of an inch in length.

Rate of Speed

We know that they are carried forward at the rate of 186,300 miles, that is to say, 11,806,963,000 inches in a second, and then there are 39,000 waves in every inch, making 460,364,757,000,000, which must enter the eye every second! The frequency of the shorter waves is, of course, still greater in proportion of their length.

It is the varying frequency of the impact of the successive waves that is the probable cause of their different effect. In this respect the phenomena of color resemble those of sound, and color may be likened to pitch. The pitch of a musical note varies with the frequency with which the sound waves strike the diaphragm of the ear. But this frequency, just as in the case of light, depends upon the length of the waves, for sound too, is conveyed with the same velocity no matter whether the waves are shorter or longer. The mean velocity of sound in air is about 1,140 feet per second.

BIDDING IN AUCTION BRIDGE

By S. S. Carvalho

ARTICLE XII.

A GUARDED suit is an Ace, a King with one small card, a Queen with 2 small, or a Jack with 3 small. Some players consider that a Queen should have 3 small to be really protected, and that one of the 3 cards accompanying the Jack should be a ten. This is not unreasonable but if followed strictly would reduce the number of No Trump declarations without a corresponding advantage. In counting the points for your No Trump hand add up the value of every face card, whether it is or is not in the unguarded suit.

As above stated, 12 points with three guarded suits is a sound Initial one No Trump. Eleven points with two guarded suits is a weak No Trump. It is only a Jack value above the average hand instead of a Queen value.

For a two No Trump add the equivalent of an Ace or four points to your standard one No Trump making 16 points. That is, the equivalent of one additional sure trick.

Unless you are an experienced player two suit No Trumps are too risky, as you must depend on your partner for both your weak suits. The odds are about four to one against being strong in both. Incidentally, the weaker a player is, the more caution he should observe in his bidding.

Here are several sound one No Trump declarations without any three guarded suits where face cards counting 12 points.

Spades—Ace and two small.
Hearts—Ace and three small.
Diamonds—Three small.
Clubs—Ace and three small.

Each Ace counting 4, the 3 Aces make up the 12 points, with the 3 suits guarded.

Spades—King and two small.
Hearts—King and two small.
Diamonds—Queen, Jack and three small.
Clubs—Queen and one small.

Here the 12 points are made up of one Ace, 4, one King, 3, two Queens, 2 each, and one Jack, 1, with 3 suits guarded.

To Be Continued Monday.
